

Flood Victims Still Leaving Their Homes

Some Waters in Washington State
Start to Recede

Seattle —AP— Working rescue teams continued weary today to evacuate persons stranded by floodwaters in northwest Washington.

Thousands of acres of lowlands were under water but there were indications some rivers were gradually receding.

The Snoqualmie river, which yesterday rose to 13 feet, dropped to 8.27 feet this morning, six inches below flood stage. Other streams also were reported dropping slowly.

The Green river was still on the rise, however, and the valley towns of Kent and Auburn south of here were still hard hit. Sheriff's officers and coast guardsmen were kept busy throughout the night answering calls for aid in the Green river valley.

Woman Killed.—A motorist was missing and it was feared he may have become the second fatality of the area's worst flood in 26 years. A woman motorist was killed in a mountain pass car-truck accident Sunday night, the night the storm broke.

The state patrol said the missing man was George Schaeke who was to have returned to Ellensburg from Seattle via Snoqualmie pass Sunday night.

A badly wrecked car, registered to Schaeke, was found amid mud and debris on a Snoqualmie river beach near North Bend. The car, its windows broken, was empty.

There was still no immediate relief in sight despite the lowering of some rivers.

Approve New Study to Curb Nuclear Tests

BY MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

Geneva —AP— The U. S., British and Soviet delegates to the nuclear test ban talks agreed today to start a new scientific study tomorrow of ways to detect underground nuclear test explosions.

The delegates met informally today to iron out details of procedure for the scientists. There still was no formal agreement on the scientists' work program because Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin said he had not received final instructions from Moscow.

Review Planned.—Western officials considered it possible the work program might never be agreed on formally and that this would make no difference. They pointed out that the political negotiations for a ban on nuclear weapons tests have themselves been in progress for more than a year—and have agreed on several articles of a draft treaty—without ever having agreed on a formal agenda.

The scientists are expected to spend the next three weeks reviewing the latest methods and instruments for detecting underground nuclear blasts at long range.

The delegations for the scientific talks will be headed by James S. Fick of the United States, Sir William Penney of Britain and Evgeny Federov of the Soviet Union.

Eight cows perished, but 14 others were lead to safety. Wautoma Fire Chief Frank Schultz estimated damage at $10,000.

Neenah —Record earnings of $101,791,667 and net earnings of $7,707,871 for the three months ended Oct. 31 were reported by Kimberly-Clark Corporation by John R. Kimbly, chairman of the board of directors, and William R. Kellett, president, here today.

Sales increased $8,228,727, or 8.7 per cent over the corresponding period of a year ago. Net earnings rose 7.2 per cent from $7,188,011 reported for the comparable quarter last year. Net earnings for the second quarter were equal to 88 cents per share of common stock compared to 82 cents per share for the same quarter in 1958.

New highs in sales and earnings for the 6-month period also were registered by Kimberly-Clark.

Sales Climbed.—Sales climbed to $192,604,020, an increase of $179,224,122 from the total of $173,379,898 reported for the first six months last year. Net earnings were $13,583,458, equal to $1.55 per common share, compared to $13,219,902, equal to $1.51 per common share, for the same period last year.

"It is expected that sales will continue to improve, and that earnings will increase materially during the next six months," Kimberly and Kellett said in the report to stockholders. "Demand for all of our products continues strong and our forward commitments indicate no significant change."

Refuse to Sign for Gift

3 Italian Villagers Won't Take Bank Stock

San Marco d' Urri, Italy —More than two weeks after their neighbors struck it rich, three residents of this mountain village still won't accept a gift of stock in the world's largest bank.

"Nobody in this world gives away money without asking something in exchange," said Miss Gentile Cassinelli, 57. "Mother says, 'Never put your signature on anything and you'll keep out of trouble,'" added her brother, Mario, 53.

From a corner of the large, dirt-floored single room of their unpainted house their 81-year-old mother, Mrs. Virginia Cassinelli, glowered at the village priest and officials of the Bank of America who wanted the family to accept ownership of 75 shares of the bank's stock.

$340,000 in Stock.—On Nov. 8 bank representatives delivered $340,000 worth of stock to the village on behalf of Victor and Joseph Saturno of Reno, Nev., whose parents were natives of San Marco d'Urri. The father — and then the sons — built up a fortune in Nevada.

Although the two brothers had never seen the village, they had heard about its poverty and wanted to help it as a memorial to their parents. So they offered 25 shares of Bank of America stock, a block worth about $1,200, to each villager, more wealth than most of them ever dreamed of possessing.

All of the 284 residents accepted with delight except the Cassinellis.

Father Luigi Rosasco, the village priest, also has tried without success to get the

7 Known Dead After Cargo Plane Hits Chicago Homes

A Fireman Stands Amid the debris of a house that was demolished this morning when a Trans-World airlines cargo plane crashed about a block from Chicago's Midway airport.

3 Crew Members and at Least 4 Residents of Dwellings Near Victims

Chicago —(AP)—A cargo plane, returning to Midway airport due to a fire warning, plowed into a house in rainy darkness just before dawn today and sprayed a sleeping neighborhood with fiery death.

Killed were the crew of three aboard the Trans World Constellation and at least four residents of homes drenched with flaming airplane fuel.

The plane, from New York and Philadelphia, crashed three blocks from the southeast corner of the nation's busiest airport, a square network of runways and terminal buildings on Chicago's southwest side.

TWA in New York said the plane had landed in Chicago, discharged cargo and taken off again when a fire warning flashed on the instrument panel. The pilot began circling to land again when the crash occurred, TWA said.

In a flash a string of houses and apartment buildings near Sixty-third street and Cicero avenue burst into flame. Firemen said 10 dwellings were set afire, some from the plane fuel, others from flames from those sprayed with gas.

Describes Crash.—"It seemed like the end of the world," residents of the neighborhood said. "They come over the house all the time," a woman resident of one of the damaged houses said, "but somehow this one sounded different. Suddenly, the entire house shook and I could hear glass flying everywhere." Flights from all points of Turn to Page 4, Col. 4

Matthews Quits Banking Position

Madison —AP— Guerdon M. Matthews submitted his resignation Monday as state banking commissioner, effective Dec. 1.

Last September Gov. Gaylord Nelson named Paul McGittigan, a Danville banker, to succeed Matthews in the $12,500 a year post.

In his letter of resignation, Matthews said he had decided to quit his post to take another job.

Nelson said deputy commissioner William Nuesse will serve as acting head of the commission until McGittigan's appointment is confirmed by the senate.

Steel Groups Face Charges

Accused of Trying To Halt Competition
In Bar for Concrete

San Francisco —AP— Western steel processors today studied a government civil suit charging they conspired to eliminate competition in steel bars for concrete in seven western states.

The U.S. government filed suit yesterday in U. S. district court here, accusing an Oakland Trade association, six steel companies and 12 fabricating firms with getting control of 75 per cent of the market in 1958 in Arizona, California, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Utah and Washington.

Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers asked that the Western Reinforcing Steel Fabricators Association of Oakland be dissolved and that 10 and 13 other defendants, including Bethlehem and U.S. Steel be declared conspirators in violation of anti-trust statutes. The complaint said they conspired to restrict foreign imports and impede small fabricators, and used non-competitive and collusive bids to control the market in the rough reinforcing steel used in concrete known as "re-bars."

Used Processing Firms.—The suit charges that the fabricators induced the steel mills to refuse to sell rebar directly to contractors and to channel bar stock through the 12 accused processing firms.

The steel companies named besides Bethlehem and U. S. Steel are Southwest Steel Rolling Mills of Los Angeles; Pacific States Steel corporation, of Niles, Calif.; Judson Steel Corp. of Emeryville, Calif.; and Bethlehem Pacific Coast Steel Corporation of San Francisco, a division of the parent Bethlehem firm.

The fabricators named are Blue Diamond corporation, Los Angeles; Deco Steel Products, Chicago; Flintoke Company, New York; Herick Iron Works, Hayward, Calif.; F. A. Klinger corporation, Stockton, Calif.; Meehills Steel company, Vernon, Calif.; Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel company, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Rutherford and Skoubye, Inc., Los Angeles; Joseph T. Ryerson & Sons, Inc., Chicago; San Jose Steel Company, Inc., San Jose, Calif.; Soule Steel company, San Francisco, and Gilmore-Skoubye Steel Contractors, Oakland, Calif.

Harold C. Madsen, 58, of 428 Third Street, Neenah, was killed instantly about 7:45 a.m. today when the bakery truck he was driving skidded into a semi-trailer truck that had jackknifed across Highway 57 about three miles north of Chilton.

His death and two others Monday night brought the state traffic toll to 726, compared with 734 on this date last year. It was the eighth traffic fatality in Calumet county this year. The county had six fatalities in all of 1958.

Carbon Monoxide Hits Choral Singers

500 High School Students
Go to Hospitals, Aid Stations

Stillwater, Okla., —AP— Carbon monoxide fumes disrupted a huge choral festival and sent some 500 high school students to hospitals and first aid stations last night.

Many were ill with carbon monoxide poisoning. Others thought they were and had to be treated for hysteria. None was considered even seriously ill. Doctors guessed about 200 had varying degrees of monoxide poisoning.

Twenty-one students remained in hospitals this morning and all were expected to be released later today. Some 1,000 students stayed here overnight, many of them because one or two of their fellow passengers were unable to leave last night.

The youngsters were part of more than 5,400 Oklahoma high school singers from 109 schools taking part in the eighth annual Thanksgiving songfest at Oklahoma State university. Another 3,000 or so persons filled Gallagher hall to hear the massed voices.

Fumes From Buses.—About 200 School and charter buses were parked around the fieldhouse and about half-way through the performance many drivers started the engines to warm the buses for the trip home.

Weldon Barnes, OSU public relations officer, said the fumes apparently were drawn into the warm buses.

Announcement that the 61-year-old Touhy would be released was made last night by Warden Joseph Ragen and the state's parole supervisor, T. Edward Austin.

Austin said his office had approved Touhy's plans to live with a sister, Mrs. Ethel Alesia, in Chicago. Austin said requirements that Touhy have employment before his release were waived because of his age and because of a back injury.

Escape in North Carolina

Family Robbed of Auto After Work Foreman Is Shot by Fleeing Felons

Jefferson, N. C. —AP— "I didn't know he had already killed a man... that he was in that truck out there."

"Oh, if I had known that..." Her eyes were welling with tears and her voice was trembling as Mrs. Edd Sheets described her brief, terrifying, unwilling role in the escape of five dangerous felons from an Ashe county prison gang.

She was alone Monday morning with her sick, 6-day-old daughter at their home about 15 road-miles north of Jefferson in the rugged mountain country a few miles west of the famous Blue Ridge parkway. The daughter was watching a children's television show.

Saw Truck on Road.—"I had seen the convict truck go down the road. I never do rest until it's gone," said the 32-year-old mother of four daughters.

"I'm always nervous when they're in the neighborhood." The truck carried 12 prisoners and three guards to the day's work assignment, a spot in the remote Cranberry Creek section. While en route, some of the prisoners cut a hole through the top of the wire cage.

When the vehicle stopped, five prisoners scrambled through the hole and onto guard William F. Handy as he dismounted. Handy was knocked down and disarmed. One prisoner shot Work Foreman Fields Absher, 55, near the heart.

Guard Judd Jones exchanged fire with the felons, but one of the convicts held a gun muzzle against Jones's head and ordered Jones to drop his weapons.

7 Take No Part.—"I didn't want to. God knows I didn't want to. Jones said, 'But Handy was begging me. He was screaming: 'They'll kill me. They mean it.'"

East-West Summit Session Unsettled

London Diplomats Believe Date Is Far Away, Paris and Bonn Leaders See Meeting Before June

London —(AP)—Diplomatic circles in London believe the date for the east-west summit conference is getting farther away. But officials in Paris and Bonn say the meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev still is likely before June.

Diplomatic observers here cite the full schedule of engagements for the world's chief political leaders. They see signs that communist China is trying to put the brakes on negotiations between Russia and the west.

There is speculation that the summit won't be reached until 1961, when a new American president will be in the White House.

But west German press chief Felix Von Eckardt told newsmen Tuesday the prevailing opinion in Bonn is that the meeting will be held in April.

American and French diplomatic sources in Paris say the most logical date appears to fall somewhere between the last week in April and the end of May.

Visit to France
They agree that it can't be set before then. Khrushchev will visit France for two weeks beginning March 15. French President Charles De Gaulle will be in Britain April 5-8. Following that, western discussion of the Khrushchev visit plus time required for technical arrangements could take up another two weeks.

There also is a possibility that De Gaulle will visit America sometime in May, thus pushing a summit date back some more.

There is a feeling here that Khrushchev might lose any desire for a meeting if it fails to materialize by the middle of June. Several leading British newspapers point out that by then the U. S. presidential election would not be far off, and Khrushchev possibly would prefer to talk with the new president rather than outgoing President Eisenhower.

Grandfather Attacks Family With Axe, 2 Children Die

Easton, Pa. —(AP)—A 60-year-old grandfather, haunted by fears his grandchildren would be taken away from him, attacked his family with an axe Tuesday. Two of the small grandchildren he loved died of axe wounds after he jumped to his death.

Raymond Gabert, 2, died today of wounds inflicted by 60-year-old Elmer Manton. Raymond's sister, Elaine, 3, succumbed in the same hospital shortly after the attack.

Manton, depressed over being idled by a long strike, also critically injured his wife, another grandson, Paul, 1, and a daughter, Mrs. Lilian Gabert, 30, the mother of the three children.

After the attack, Manton climbed a warehouse fire escape and jumped 60 feet to his death.

Leaves Note
At the foot of the fire escape Manton left a note, written in English and Italian. It said in part:

"Please do not call this murder. Call it a mercy killing. I know it is wrong but I must and I know God will forgive me. . . they going to take children away. . . this way we be together and our suffering be over. I suffered more than Christ 100 times. All my family forgive me. All the neighbors and friends, forgive me. . ."

The note was addressed to Mrs. Gabert. Manton lives in Phillipsburg, N.J., across

Reject Plan Of Governor

Tax on Airplane Fuel-Turned Down By Committee

Madison —(AP)—The Legislature's Joint Finance committee has rejected Gov. Gaylord Nelson's recommendation for revamping the activities of the State Aeronautics commission and boosting its budget for the 1960-61 biennium.

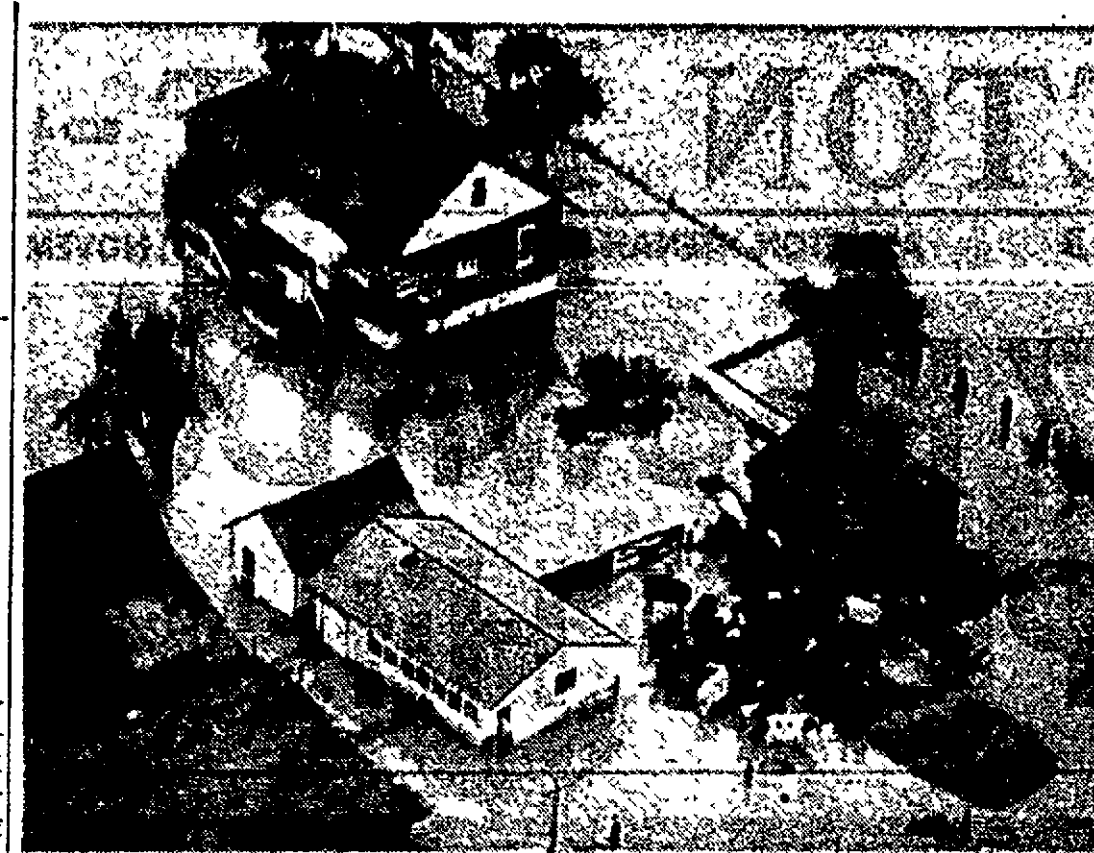

The committee also turned down at its Monday meeting, Nelson's request for taxing airplane fuel and retaining gasoline tax refunds. Nelson said the funds could be used to pay state aids for development of airports.

The vote against the governor's recommendation was termed a victory for small airplane business operators. They protested that the fuel taxes and denial of refunds would drive them out of business.

The committee restored a provision setting maximum state airport aids at 50 percent of the cost of different localities rather than the 25 percent figure recommended by Nelson.

The budget now provides $232,373 from the state general fund and $200,000 from licensing fees. Nelson asked the committee to cut in half the amount from the general fund and use an estimated $396,250 from licensing fees and fuel tax refunds for state aids.

Criticize Plan to Dam Bering Strait

Weather Experts Say Climate Change Might be Bad for the Russians

Moscow —(AP)—A plan to alter Arctic weather conditions by damming the Bering Strait has drawn criticism from Soviet weather experts who say the huge dam might change the climate for the worse.

The Soviet news agency today reported a meeting, sponsored by the Literary Gazette, of scientists, engineers and writers to discuss the proposal by Pyotr Borisov for a dam between the Asian and North American continents. Other scientists and writers have also suggested such a plan.

Borisov said a dam across the Bering Strait would convert millions of acres of permanently frozen land into fertile farmlands and pastures by diverting warm ocean currents northward. The strait between Siberia and Alaska is 55 miles at its narrowest and 170 feet at its deepest.

Ocean currents, a staff member of the weather forecast institute, said ocean currents do not arise by themselves, but depend on winds. Since winds cannot be stopped, he said it is impossible to bar the road to currents.

Backed by Oceanographer Vasily Nazarov and Climatologist Valery Pyankov, Drogaitsev said warming up the Arctic region might worsen the climate further south, causing drier summers, colder winters, and forcing the drought zone northward. They said it is too early to raise the question of changing climate on a vast scale.

Other speakers at the meeting, including power engineer Arkady Markin, stressed the need for more active climate control. They said Borisov's idea can and must become a matter of study for scientists from many countries.

Boris Alexandrov, a member of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences, said the cost of the project cannot be accurately estimated until a vast amount of research is carried out by oceanographers, physicists, geologists and other specialists.

But considering the tremendous advantages the realization of Borisov's plan would offer, he said, the question of cost, however great seems to be of secondary importance.

Humphrey to Tell Decision In January

Philadelphia —(AP)—Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) said today he'll announce early in January whether he'll be a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination and "right now it looks very encouraging."

"I'm unofficially campaigning for the nomination and officially taking a look at things, you might say," Humphrey declared.

"I've been talking with political leaders, sort of trying to sense the political atmosphere and temperature—trying to find out if I have adequate support," he explained, adding:

"I've done a lot of traveling in the Pacific northwest, Rocky Mountain states and the midwest recently. Right now it looks very encouraging."

"You can draw your own conclusions. I'll make an announcement one way or another early in January. There's not much room to miscalculate."

Humphrey explains that by miscalculation he meant he didn't want to gamble on the presidential nomination without assurance of adequate support since he feels he already has the backing to win reelection to the senate.

Nelson's Veto Of Salary Bill Gets Support

Assembly Votes to Defeat Raise for Superintendents

Madison —(AP)—Gov. Gaylord Nelson's veto of a bill to grant state aid for higher salaries for county school superintendents was upheld by the assembly Monday night.

The 51-36 vote fell short of the two-thirds needed to override the veto. The Republican controlled Senate voted last week to upset the veto.

The measure would have provided about $85,000 annually for the state to pay 20 per cent of the salaries if they were set as high as those received by supervising teachers.

Based on Work
A superintendent's salary, under present law, must be $3,000 or more if he supervises less than 70 teachers, and $4,000 or higher if he supervises 70 or more teachers.

Nelson, in his veto message, said the salaries of county school officials should be based on the work load and not on the salaries of supervising teachers.

A bill which would remove tax uniformity requirements from the state constitution was introduced at Nelson's request. The governor said the measure is designed to permit classification of personal property for tax purposes.

The plan would be put on a referendum ballot if it receives favorable action from two legislative sessions.

Newsman Admits Lie About Bribe to Stop Slum Clearing Story

Gleason of New York Telegram, Sun Tells District Attorney Story

New York —(AP)—Newsman Eugene Gleason has admitted to the district attorney's office that he lied when he claimed a high city official tried to bribe him to stop investigating the city's slum clearance program.

Gleason, a reporter for the New York World-Telegram and Sun, told Chief Assistant Dist. Atty. Alfred J. Scotti Monday that he lied twice about the "bribe"—first in 1956 to his fellow reporter, Fred J. Cook, and again Sunday night on a television program.

Cook, also a World-Telegram and Sun newsmen, said on WNTA-TV's discussion program "Open End" that Gleason had told him a high city official offered them $75 to $100 a week each to halt their research on the slum clearance program. Gleason said on the show that the official was still in the city administration.

Discuss Article
Along with other newspaper men, Cook and Gleason were discussing their recent article, "The Shame of New York," which appeared in a special issue of the Nation, a weekly magazine. Cook said he brought up the incident because city officials had charged he and Gleason were irresponsible in their charges of mishandling Title I projects.

Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan called Cook and Gleason to his office Monday. They showed up with an attorney, and another staff member of their newspaper. After the others left, Gleason remained with Scotti and Assistant Dist. Atty. Francis X. Clark. Hogan said Gleason at first stuck to his story and named a city official. After four hours of questioning, Gleason signed a 6-page statement admitting he lied.

Gleason Takes Blame
Gleason took all the blame for the incident. He said Cook had only repeated what he told him.

Cook said he and Gleason immediately agreed to reject the offer. He said on the program they had reported the incident to their city desk, but Monday Cook and Gleason both said they had not told any of their superiors at the newspaper.

David Susskind, moderator of the program, asked Cook if they had reported the matter to the district attorney. Cook replied that they had not.

Statement Made
Robert Moses, chairman of Mayor Robert F. Wagner's slum clearance committee, said in a statement:

"This is just what I expected. Such reporters, editors and publishers are no credit to an otherwise honorable profession. They lie habitually. Eventually they are found out. In the meantime, they do a lot of harm to decent officials, and a great disservice to the more glibbie readers."

Farm Policies May Cost Votes

GOP Candidate Out Because Republicans Show No Sympathy

Washington —(AP)—Reaction to the administration's farm policies may lose some votes for the 1960 GOP presidential candidate, Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) said today.

He predicted that result from what he called "the impression in farm areas the administration is not sympathetic to farmers." He mentioned North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and Iowa as among the states where such an impression could cost Republican votes.

But Aiken added in an interview that farmers are losing their political influence in the nation as a whole as their numbers decline and their interests broaden. Less than 10 per cent of the nation is engaged in agriculture, he said, and the number is declining.

"A farm revolt would not have the impact of 15 or 20 years ago," Aiken said. "And about a third of the farmers are engaged in other businesses which would influence them to vote Republican."

Aiken, senior Republican on the agriculture committee, said he sees little chance of any major farm legislation next year.

The views of secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and congress are so far apart, he said, that "the outlook for basic changes in farm law in the January session is very bleak."

"I can't imagine congress passing an administration bill," he told reporters, "any more than I can imagine the president signing any measure congress might pass."

5-Year Program

Appleton School's French Program Termed 'Gateway to Nation's Life'

BY JACK HOLZHUETER

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

When Sputnik I orbited into the American educational scene two years ago, the hue and cry went up from culture advocates the nation over: "Teach your children a foreign language. Aid in achieving peace in this fast-shrinking world"

Appleton, like thousands of cities, took stock after Sputnik, but it discovered what most cities were unable to discover. It already had a compulsory language program for its children, and what's more, the program had been operating for three years.

Now, however, the program has rocketed with greater force to encircle the junior high school curriculum, extend into senior high and generally to have revolutionized French in the Appleton Public school system.

'Gateway to Life'

Explains Miss Martha Sorensen, director of elementary education: "To understand other people thoroughly one must become acquainted with their everyday way of life. To receive such an understanding, a knowledge of the other culture's language is helpful, for language is the gateway to the life of a nation."

Walking through the gateway this year are 1,394 intermediate children, in grades 4 to 6, as well as more than 400 more in the junior high schools. Teaching them are four men and women, two of whom are native-speaking French people.

Mrs. Kim Hoang Miller, a native of Vietnam who considers French her "first" language, and Andre Girod, Paris, are on the faculty, with Robert Bergman, a Lawrence college student, and Mrs. Jean Knorr, a part-time teacher filling in this semester.

Aural-Oral Approach

These four are carrying on in the tradition started as an experiment in 1954. That year, one teacher visited intermediate classrooms in two buildings to see whether the youngsters could grasp French by listening and speaking it, called the aural-oral approach.

It was felt children could learn a second language better and more quickly the younger they are because they are naturally more uninhibited and imitative at that age—both qualities somewhat necessary in learning a second language.

The board of education decided the program was a success and authorized hiring additional French teachers for all first year intermediate pupils.

The ball was rolling. In 1957, the first of those pupils who had gone through the 3-year beginning program reached junior high school, and they were provided teachers to continue the language experiment.

This year, many of those same pupils still are taking French as ninth graders and they are more than ready to step into senior high school classes. Already they are writing "dictées," difficult little exercises wherein the students write out a small essay dictated to them by their teachers.

They also are composing their own newspaper, "La Petite France," using simple forms, to be sure, but accurate forms.

Writing Difficult

Writing French is more difficult than writing English mainly because verbs (the so-called action words) are more complex. For example, the present tense (the one used in newspaper headlines) has six endings in French, but in English there are only four. Also, many of the endings change in spelling, but not in pronunciation. The endings are the same, for example, and plurals (more than one) are rarely pronounced as they always are in English.

Dictation, therefore, is an exercise in grammar and spelling as well as listening and speaking. It is often considered the best way to teach French.

But the approach on the lower level is much simpler, and, in a way, more utilitarian. Children are taught French by having the teachers speak it to them. Simple phrases and sentences like the now famous "plume de ma tante" (title of a Broadway musical) and "le crayon est sur la table" (the pencil is on the table) are told the children and they repeat them.

Repeat, Repeat, Repeat

"Repeat, repeat, repeat. That's the only way to teach," explains Mrs. Miller, teaching here for the first time, although she taught college classes previously in Denver.

Mrs. Miller extracts French from her charges as painlessly as possible. "Bonjour, classe," she says as she enters the intermediate I rooms. "Bonjour," the class responds in unison.

From then, it is a game for the children to come up with the right word, turn of phrase or action. They learn parts of the body and names of clothing by using pictures from advertisements and pointing to their own clothes.

They learn actions by playing the French version of Simon says, "Simon dit."

Their enthusiasm is boundless. Sit in any classroom and known in intermediate classes. When a child forgets a word, he is apt to strike his brow furiously and hiss to himself, "dumbbell!"

The old adage that languages can be learned only by bright students is not true, Miss Sorensen reports. Teachers surveyed the classes in 1958 and found that just about as many poor students do very well in French as very good students do poorly. Twelve out of 227 below average children did very well. Ninety did poorly. Seven out of 269 very superior children did poorly, while 238 did well.

"The tendency is, of course, for the bright children to do well," Miss Sorensen explains. "But many of our poorest students do just as well."

On the junior high school level, French becomes optional. Students who do not wish to continue can drop it, but nearly one half continue it yearly, figures show. Composition and reading is begun on this level, and the courses begin to resemble the traditional, classical language courses taught in high school and college.

Still, the aural-oral approach is stressed, and students spend at least as much time speaking and listening as they do writing and studying grammar.

Enthusiasm Maintained
Another similarity is maintained between the intermediate and junior high school levels. The students are just as enthusiastic. Ask a question of ninth graders and hands wave just as tensely, fingertips quivering, denoting a

Fox Cities Hunters Deny Charges, Face Trial in Waupaca

Waupaca. — Two Fox Cities men pleaded innocent of possessing untagged venison and transporting untagged venison when they appeared before Justice George Whalen Monday.

They are John Hahn, 42, 600 Knight avenue, Neenah, and Selmer Moseng, 46, route 3, Appleton. Both signed their own bonds of $250 for appearance at trial Dec. 7 at Waupaca.

They were arrested in a just as real an interest in learning a second tongue as children six years younger.

By September, 1960, some curriculum changes will be necessary at Appleton High school.

"We are studying the problem and certainly will have it solved when fall rolls around," Principal H. H. Helble says. He indicated that students who want to continue in French could do so easily, and that the school used to offer four years of French.

Future Assured
"We offered four years of several languages when we were a 4-year high school," Helble recalled. "We always have been prepared to offer three years of French if we could get a class of 15 students." The school now offers three years of Latin and Spanish and two of French and German.

What of the future for French in the public schools? Miss Sorensen didn't want to predict what would happen, but she was sure French would be continued. "Languages," she concluded, "are the gateway to the life of a nation."

Gas Affects 500 Singers In Oklahoma

into the fieldhouse by air intake fans.

Hardest hit were the soprano and alto sections in the balcony at the south end. Girls outnumbered boys at hospitals and aid stations about 10 to 1.

David Pursley, a Lawton High school sophomore, said, "I was downstairs and I turned around and looked up and saw them falling. I helped several out. I was walking around looking for some more to carry out and one girl who was seated in the balcony fell and hit the rail, then bounced toward the floor. I and two other boys caught her and took her to a room for oxygen."

The program was halted just before the final number, the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah."

Orderly Withdrawal
Witnesses said the withdrawal from Gallagher hall was orderly, but once outside many more youngsters became ill.

Ambulances, oxygen and doctors were assembled from Stillwater and communities surrounding this north central Oklahoma college town of 25,000. Rescue parties formed quickly.

An unknown number of students who seemed all right were sent home as soon as buses could be loaded. The highway patrol said some of these were becoming ill on the buses. Eight were hospitalized as soon as they reached Tulsa, about 80 miles away, but none was in serious condition.

Around midnight weary instructors tackled the job of finding out who was well, who was sick and who was missing. Even then, a few became ill.

Few Stay in Hospitals
A very few were held in hospitals overnight. After treatment most were taken to college dormitories, fraternity and sorority houses and private homes for the night.

G. C. Epperly, Stillwater High school chorus director, called it "a combination of too many hot dogs, a little carbon monoxide and a lot of mass hysteria."

Dr. Oliver S. Willham, president of OSU, toured all hospitals and aid stations and said there were no serious cases.

One doctor, unidentified, said, "these kids had only a small taste of gas. They began to feel a little dizzy, then became scared. Excitement played a bigger part in the faintings than the gas did."

The nation's largest such festival, it had drawn its biggest attendance, 5,431 students.

Nixon May Quit Presidential Race, Sen. Keating Says

New York — Sen. Kenneth B. Keating says "Rockefeller might decide not to be a candidate or Nixon might decide to withdraw" from the presidential nomination field before the Republican convention next year.

Keating, Rochester, N. Y., Republican, is a close friend of both Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York. Keating, who talked with newsmen Monday night, said: "I wouldn't be surprised to see Rockefeller nominate Nixon or Nixon nominate Rockefeller when the convention meets. I would like to see it happen."

Keating was asked about the possibility of his becoming a candidate for vice president if Nixon is nominated for president. Keating said he would consider it only if Rockefeller and the Republican state organization requested him to do so.

Italy's President To Visit Russia

Rome — President Giovanni Gronchi will visit the Soviet Union in January despite Vatican fears that Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev would make a return visit and draw enthusiastic crowds. Italy has the largest communist party west of the Iron Curtain.

Gronchi, a left-wing Christian democrat and Catholic, is expected to invite Soviet President Klementi Voroshilov instead of Khrushchev. Voroshilov is less well known than the premier and would probably not attract as much attention.

The Vatican radio said communism "would make big propaganda in Italy when Khrushchev would come here to repay the visit," but the cabinet of Premier Antonio Segni approved the visit. Gronchi and Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella are scheduled to begin their 1-week tour Jan. 8.

the compass use Midway. The rate of traffic is nearly movement in or out every minute of the day and night. Thomas Fracassi, 31, occupant of a house hit by the plane, said the aircraft caved the roof into a bedroom. Two of his three small children were hurt. Fracassi, his wife, Geraldine, 29, and their third child, were unhurt.

Apartment Set Afire

The Fracassi home burst into flame and fire enveloped a 6-apartment, 3-story building behind his house. A woman living across the street from the Fracassis, Miss Gertrude Bolin, said "repeated explosions" awakened her. She said what she believed to be explosions could have been roofs collapsing.

The three dead crew members were identified by TWA as C. W. Helwig, pilot; D. E. Waters, co-pilot, and A. L. Auge, flight engineer, all based at Los Angeles.

The 116-foot-long 4-engine Lockheed Constellation was running behind schedule and was due in Chicago at 1:50 a.m. It left New York with a 6,576-pound cargo including an aircraft engine and other freight, 99 pounds of mail and 106 pounds of express.

Warning Causes Return
It landed in Chicago, unloaded some cargo and took off again for Los Angeles, TWA reported, when the warning of fire aboard the craft flashed on the instrument panel. The pilot began circling to return to Midway when the crash occurred.

First firemen arriving at the scene reported the entire area was ablaze. John Ascher, chief of Chicago detectives, said there were four residents of dwellings killed in addition to the three airline employees.

The badly burned bodies of a man about 40 and a woman about 35 were brought to the morgue but could not be identified immediately.

Fire Commissioner Robert Quinn said the body of the pilot was found still strapped to his cabin seat 50 feet away from a building at 6355 S. Kilpatrick avenue. The co-pilot's body was recovered from the building.

The lead car slowed to turn right on County Trunk E. The following semi-trailer was able to slow down, but the semi-trailer next in line, driven by Robert Clayton, 20, Preble, jackknifed across the highway.

Clayton told Calumet police his truck had nearly come to a stop when Madsen's truck skidded into the trailer near the coupling.

The impact pinned Madsen between the dash board and the seat. Heavy wrecking equipment was called from Appleton to free him from the cab - over - engine cab about 9:15 a.m.

FDA Seizes Three Lots of Berries, One From State

Washington — The Food and Drug administration announced seizure of actions against three lots of cranberries Monday. One of the shipments was from Wisconsin and another was packed for a Wisconsin firm.

The new seizure action included one against an 81,000-pound lot which Ocean Spray Cranberries Incorporated had voluntarily set aside for testing. It was shipped from Wisconsin Rapids to Chicago on Oct. 10-11.

The other lots were 703 bags containing 50 pounds of frozen berries shipped Oct. 27 from Carver, Mass., to Swedesboro, N. J., and 20 cases of 24-pound bags of fresh cranberries packed for a firm in Wisconsin and shipped from Chicago to Birmingham, Ala., on Oct. 2-8.

pleaded with the felons not to kill Handy, as Jones surrendered.

The escapees donned the guards' caps and uniforms and ordered Jones and Handy into the truck cage. The other seven prisoners loaded the mortally wounded Absher, a grandfather, into the cage also.

"I saw the prison truck come back and it stopped out front," said Mrs. Sheets. "One man got out and came to our door. He had on guard clothes and I figured he was all right."

Mrs. Sheets opened the door and the man, with aimed pistol, demanded the keys to her 1959 Ford automobile. The five piled into the red-and-white car and fled.

Dies on Way

Jones, Handy and the seven other prisoners rushed Absher to a hospital.

"He died before we got there," Jones said. "I don't believe he ever said a word." The state highway patrol, assisted by city, county and federal officers, set up roadblocks in the northwestern section of North Carolina, trying to keep the heavily armed felons within the mountains where escape routes are few. Officers in neighboring Virginia and Tennessee also were on the lookout.

The five escapees and their sentences:

Mother Beats Brains Out of Her 4 Children

Rossville, Ga. — "I killed all of my children. There were four of them. There's no use going to see if they're dead. I know they're dead. I beat their brains out with a hammer."

A sheriff's deputy thus quoted a 31-year-old mother after she walked several blocks in a heavy rain to the home of a preacher to disclose the deaths of her children Monday night.

Police went to the home of Mrs. Wiley M. Thrallkill, Sr., where they found the bodies of three boys, the oldest 5, and a girl of two months. Their heads were brutally beaten.

Deputy W. S. Flegal said Mrs. Thrallkill apparently was under delusions of religious persecution. He said she told him that a certain religious group was seeking out the children—Wiley, Jr., 5; Alfred Boyd, 3; Robert Edward, 18 months, and Mildred Ann, 2 months. Mrs. Thrallkill was placed in jail, but no charges were filed immediately.

Coroner Hill Pope said the father, a 36-year-old carpenter, was at work when the children were killed. Hill said the father told him Mrs. Thrallkill once had undergone psychiatric treatment.

The Real War

The casual observer may see the disputed areas between Red China and India as danger spots in world peace. But far more alarming for the future of the free world is the conflict between the economies of these mammoth nations and the fact that China, under communist rule, is ahead.

The traditional pacifism of the Indian people who followed Ghandi can be overcome by attacks on their nation. Economics is not the determining factor in every national conflict. But Asia today is more than a battleground of ideologies; it is a mass of humanity suddenly aware that appalling standards of living are not worldwide, and anxious to grow and change. The citizen of a free land may see only the hideous cruelty of communist methods and their exploitation of humanity; the hungry Asian cannot help but look to the fait accompli.

Both India and China emerged from World War II with masses of hungry people, primitive methods, industrial despair—and a striving for something better. And today it is apparent that the one which turned to totalitarian methods is ahead economically.

Despite the fact that resistance to the commune system, droughts, floods and insects cut the figures the Red Chinese had hoped for in agricultural production, their food grains increased between 1952 and 1957 from 157 million tons to 225 million tons according to foreign estimates. In the same period India's food grains grew from 62 million to only 72 million tons. The crucial ability to save capital has had all the advantage in China. Under the strict regulations of an almost all-powerful government, China's amount of national income saved was never less than 20 per cent during those years, while India's barely reached 8 per cent. China seems to have continually been repaying its considerable debt to the Soviet Union. India needs more and more aid if its economy is ever to reach the self-sustaining level.

Attempts apparently have been made in both countries to control population, but with little success. China seems to have dropped birth control pressure with the idea that communism ideologically can succeed better if it emphasizes its ability to raise food production for any number. India's 400 million people, with less disease and some improvement in sanitary conditions, is expected to reach twice that amount in 30 years. But the simple fact of not enough food, not a fast enough growth in the development of modern agricultural methods and production levels and not enough capital goods for such production gives evidence that starvation, rather than Malthus' war or disease, may keep the level down.

Here again the propaganda odds are against the free nations. The starving children of India will be pictured to the world, especially to the other peoples of Asia; those murdered by the relentless totalitarianism of isolated China will not be talked about. Asian leaders, even those who understand the cost to the values of humanity of the communist methods, cannot help but notice that the Reds seem to be able to overcome the taboos and traditional restrictions of centuries which restrict material progress.

The picture is not completely black since India, despite the need to cut back in 1958, apparently has sound plans which could, by 1966, get its percentage of national income in investment up to 13 per cent, a fairly healthy level, according to some economic experts. But it cannot achieve the growth alone. According to Barbara Ward, economic writer for the New York Times, India needs assurance of a billion dollars of foreign aid per year for five years to keep the growth steady. Miss Ward emphasizes that this will not catch India up to China, and the amount of aid necessary for such a program, even if available, would make India too dependent in the future on other nations.

The Chinese soldiers seeping into India are not there by accident. They are part of the plan of conflict between the two countries. The more money India must spend on military goods, the less it has to buy capital goods for its economic development. The further behind China that India slips in living standards, the less successful democracy looks to the other underdeveloped nations.

Ideally economic growth should be gradual if steady so as to not disrupt too harshly the customs of centuries and the traditions that influence and expand the life of the individual. The ways and means of democracy cannot be superimposed on a people. But the haste of Red China may not give India time for such development. The free nations have to remember that this conflict may have most of Asia at stake and possibly even the whole world.

People's Forum

New State Departments Have Proper Statutory Authority

Editor, Post-Crescent:

You recently carried in the People's Forum a letter by Miss Gladys Walsh concerning the law establishing the Board on Government Operations and the Department of Administration.

Miss Walsh reviewed the bill while it was being considered by the legislature and outlined her objections to it to the members of the joint committee on finance. The law was passed by a vast majority—92 votes for and 31 against in the assembly and 31 votes for and 2 against in the senate.

As Miss Walsh's letter contained certain charges and allegations relative to the law I believe that a general explanation of the purposes, objectives, authority and limits of authority of the Department of Administration should be made.

The Department of Administration has been given statutory authority over the state's central accounting, personnel, purchasing, budgeting, engineering and housekeeping services. These functions were formerly carried out by five separate agencies, namely the Department of Budget and Accounts, the Bureau of Purchasing, Engineering, and Personnel, and the Division of Departmental Research in the executive office. The function and the responsibility of the Department of Administration is clearly delineated in the statutes and cannot be added to or diminished by the commissioner of the department or the governor.

The commissioner of the Department of Administration has limited authority under the law for reorganization of the department subject to approval by the governor. I believe it is this power of reorganization that Miss Walsh termed "government by decree." It should be noted that the detailed organization structure of almost every state department is set by the head of the department rather than by statute and the granting of this limited authority to the commissioner is in line with sound government philosophy.

The law establishing the department provides for a legislative Board on Government Operations which replaces the former Emergency Board. This new board has the responsibility to continually review the operations of the department and to file a biennial report on the work performed and accomplishments of the Department of Administration. No other state agency is by law subject to such close legislative scrutiny. In addition the Board on Government Operations has been given authority to adjust legislative appropriations if such action is in accordance with legislative intent and an emergency exists or duplication may be eliminated and the state's efficiency improved. Concerning this provision, Miss Walsh states that "Administration of government by and for the people of Wisconsin under laws created by the legislature is destroyed, and we are to have administration of government by complete autocracy."

The functions of the department are set by the legislature; the executive branch has been given authority and responsibility to properly execute these functions subject to close legislative scrutiny as to the manner in which these functions are carried out. This is sound government practice and strictly in accordance with our democratic philosophy of representative government.

The development of improved methods for facilitating the carrying out of the legislative and executive functions is a continuing responsibility of government. We believe the establishment of the Department of Administration and the Board on Government Operations represents a forward step in this development.

While the success of the new department to bring about more efficient and better managed state government can only be judged on the basis of performance, the citizens of the state should be assured that the personnel in the department

Bench Appointment Criticized

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Nov. 27, 1880.

The Appleton Crescent is not alone in condemning the bigoted partisanship of Gov. Smith in the appointment of Mr. Cassoday to the Associate Justiceship. The Milwaukee Sentinel uses the following emphatic but dignified language:

"Governor Smith has taken the responsibility of breaking the unwritten law in favor of sustaining an unpartisan bench, and upon the advisability of this act there will be a wide difference of opinion, even among Republicans.

Mr. Cassoday's attainments and suitability to the position to which he has been called render it improbable that any personal objections will be urged against him. The only point which can be raised against the rehabilitation of the Supreme bench will rest on the matter of partisanship. It is to be regretted that this change must be criticized as undesirable."

Now the Supreme Court stands one independent Republican, one independent Democrat, and three strong partisan Republicans; or four Republicans and one Democrat.

Student Loan Program Has Proven Its Value

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Madison—An open letter to the members of the joint finance committee of the Wisconsin legislature:

Gentlemen: May a bystander interrupt your deliberations to offer his view that the student loan program now being considered by you probably contains more potential for social good over a longer period than any other measure now pending in this legislative session?

As student, reporter and parent, I have had nearly 30 years of direct contact with the University of Wisconsin and to a lesser degree with the other institutions of higher learning in Wisconsin. That experience has led to some conclusions, offered herewith.

There are many young men and women who should come to college, and who do not, and there are many who come who probably don't belong there. Perhaps we can't do much about the latter. We can do something about the former, because one of the factors discouraging the attendance of many worthy and apt students is the cost.

I have no illusions about the chance of direct financial assistance in the form of grants or scholarships. The state budget of Wisconsin is now making a direct gift of about $800 a year to each University student in the form of tax-financed tuition costs.

Given the size and economic potential of this state, the pressing demands for other expenditures, and the enormous increases in enrollment that impend, the problem of helping the financially handicapped but talented young people must be resolved in other ways.

The simplest, most effective and economical means is by a reasonable loan program that would help these young people to help themselves.

Thousands of young men and women are demonstrating today, as many demonstrated in my earlier generation, that it is perfectly possible for the fit young person to earn all or a substantial part of his college expenses through a part-time work while on the campus and through summer employment in these years of plentiful job opportunities.

The difficulty is that many young men and women out in the state don't know that, or if they have been told, they don't believe it. They hesitate to come to Madison without funds. A state loan program would provide that minimum security they need, a foothold, so to speak, while they find ways to earn in non-study hours.

THE RECORD

Wisconsin has a persuasive precedent in this field. Way back in 1933, when this correspondent was a youngster on the campus, an enlightened state government provided a loan program with reasonable checks and safeguards. I can name a score of men who are now useful, productive, distinguished citizens and leaders in this state who would have been casualties in those days without the credits sparingly but with infinite discrimination offered by the state during the 1930's.

These were unsecured loans. They were the kind the professional banker could not make. Yet it is a warm footnote to the story, it seems to me, that virtually all of those notes were collected. Only two per cent in the history of the program were written off. I believe the original appropriation was a modest $100,000. That money has been loaned out ten to 12 times since it was originally provided, with thousands of young men and women aided over the years.

Is there any other $100,000 appropriation that provided such dividends, or any other $250,000 item in your otherwise generous budget of this year that promises such rich returns in individual happiness and satisfaction and community advancement for decades ahead?

This loan bill carries the name of Gov. Nelson, but its prompt approval would be one of the significant bipartisan acts of the year. The governor's idea was not his own. He is merely asking for an extension of a plan long ago proved practicable and good, and his special interest relates to the circumstance that he is a resident of Madison and a comparatively recent student at the University who understands this matter better than many others.

Plainfield, N. J. — (AP) — Maurice S. Mandell and his wife have taken out what they call "a cheap insurance policy" that cost about $100 a person for themselves and four children.

They had a 10 by 11-foot atomic fallout shelter built into a corner of their basement.

"It gives us a greater sense of security," says Mrs. Mandell. Her family moved here two years ago from Ohio where, she said, there's little thought of atomic warfare.

TV quiz postscript: One correspondent writes to say it's obvious this column was never rigged for laughs.

A Suggestion for the Broadcasters

When the Federal Trade commission holds its public hearings on the quiz show scandals it may look into a charge that not only were the quiz shows rigged in the industry-wide scramble for higher audience ratings, but even the ratings themselves may have been rigged in an effort to attract business.

Television audience ratings are based on a sampling to determine which programs TV set owners are watching. The sampling is usually taken by telephone when a battery of workers calls numbers selected with the idea of getting a cross-section of the audience in any given territory.

Robert F. Hurligh, president of Mutual Broadcasting system, recently declared in a public address that the Senate committee investigating the TV problem "has a large amount of evidence showing rigged ratings and deliberate broadcast circulation misrepresentations on national, regional and local levels."

Earl W. Kintner, chairman of the Federal Trade commission, should have no difficulty in suggesting a cure for this situation. He recently attended and spoke at a meeting of the Audit Bureau of Circulations. That bureau is an organization set up by interested groups to supply unbiased and untainted figures on the circulations of newspapers, magazines and other periodicals. Kintner told the ABC members that their bureau offers "evidence that American businessmen possess the capacity to clean their own houses, to police their own ranks against the depredations of the irresponsible or larcenous few." Kintner said that "whether the reason be ignorance of the law or disregard of it, the fact remains that self-policing in many organizations—even industries—is heading for the shoals."

The Audit Bureau of Circulations is a cooperative association of advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers for the verification of the circulations of newspapers and periodicals. Thus it is financed and directed by both the buyers and sellers of advertising and could not exist very long if it were not absolutely impartial. It is an auditing organization and its representatives are beyond the control of any advertiser, advertising agency or publisher. The ABC must serve the interests of each and all of the parties to the buying and selling of advertising and therefore must maintain an absolutely impartial position. Such an organization could, of course, be set up by the broadcasters, the advertisers and the advertising agencies and thus put TV and radio ratings on a basis which would be above criticism.

Obscure Heroes

All too frequently we take for granted the obscure but vital research being done to rid the world of crippling, killing diseases.

We read the other day, for instance, of a Michigan State university professor who is researching warts, seeking a link between these generally non-malignant tumors and those that are cancerous.

Prof. Walter Mack is a specialist in viruses. He wants to find out if warts are caused by a virus. He hopes this might lead to a major breakthrough in the fight against cancer for, if a virus causes warts, support would be lent to a theory that a virus causes other tumors including ones that are cancerous.

This is but one microscopic phase of a gigantic research program which goes on around the clock, forever seeking and searching out a deterrent to the dreaded cancer.

Scientists like Prof. Mack work far from the glare of publicity. Perhaps they prefer it that way. The obscurity of their labors tends to create the "for granted" outlook of most Americans regarding medical research.

But when the great discoveries are made and the world becomes aware that a new advance has been made in the ceaseless war of man against disease, people everywhere can then rejoice and a part of the scientists' goal will have been realized.

There is, after all, no total victory. The war must go on and on. But all of us may bask a little more easily in the sunshine of security knowing that these dedicated men are working silently and alone for us.

British Dispell Any Doubt About Need For Speed Limits

From The Washington, D. C., Star

Any lingering doubts which American motorists might have about the value of posted speed limits on freeways should be dispelled by the experience of their British counterparts.

The scene was the opening of Britain's first superhighway, a 6-lane, divided, "no limit" road between London and Birmingham. The public, in the words of one police official, went "absolutely mad." Car after car rocked along at 90 and 100 miles an hour, careening around more timid drivers who wandered out of the "slow" lanes. By midafternoon, automobile clubs were getting breakdown calls at the rate of one every six minutes. "Out of gas" was the main complaint, from motorists who didn't realize how much gasoline they would consume at sustained high speeds. One enthusiast pushed his car so hard the engine dropped out.

FFA Tightens Up Regulation For Licenses

Agency to Demand Instrument Skills For All Fliers

Washington — The Federal Aviation agency said today its new requirement that private pilots take special training in how to fly safely in bad weather will apply initially only to those licensed after next March 16. The main impact, therefore, will be on student pilots. FAA said it has not decided how the regulations will be applied ultimately to all private pilots. However, the agency said it is strongly urging all pilots to acquire the emergency capability as a safety measure.

The goal, FAA said, is to get the other pilots to take the training as they learn its value.

The FAA emphasized that the new rules do not require that pilots learn to fly by instruments. The special training will qualify the pilots only for emergency use of some instruments, by familiarizing them with the instruments.

The pilots will be required to accomplish certain maneuvers and meet certain standards under the new rules.

The FAA made the statements in clarifying an earlier impression that the new rules applied to all private pilots. Although many pilots already were reported taking the instruction, indications were that a blanket order would halt the flying of others, especially the small plane operators.

Stricter Training
The regulations, effective next spring, require private pilots to become sufficiently familiar with the basic instruments so they will be able to keep the plane under control if they lose visual contact with the ground.

FAA said it also will impose, on March 16, stricter rules for the training of commercial pilots—non-airline pilots who have certificates to fly for hire. The new commercial pilots will be required to take 10 hours of instruction in instrument flight. This regulation likewise does not apply to such pilots now licensed.

There are about 350,000 pilots in the two categories.

All airline pilots are required to take elaborate training courses in instruments and to pass stringent flight tests that qualify them to fly by instruments.

The new rules will not permit private and commercial pilots to fly deliberately in bad weather using instruments. But when a pilot suddenly runs into fog or storm he will know what to do.

The Aircraft Owners and Pilots association issued a statement saying the new FAA rule is "nothing more than the lifesaving technique voluntarily developed by A.O.P.A. and already learned voluntarily, at their own expense, by many private pilots."

Under this, the organization said, a pilot learns enough about the inherent stability of an airplane and to use one widely employed instrument—the turn and bank indicator—to save his life if he flies into bad weather.

Proposed Cigaret Tax Hit as Discriminatory

35 Per Cent Who Smoke Would Be Hurt, Food Institute Says

Madison — The Democratic legislature for an increase in the state tax on cigarettes from 5 to 6 cents a package when the legislature opens hearings on the administration's tax program Dec. 1. Attacking Gov. Nelson's plan for raising $4,000,000 more per year from the cigarette using population, the stitute predicted that the cigarette vending machine operators are likely to be hard hit if the proposal becomes law. "For them, it means absorbing the increase, perhaps sharing it with the location owner," an association bulletin said.

Price Already High
"It is unlikely that they can increase their selling price which is already high, compared to over-the-counter sales. An increase in price by vendors would mean expensive machine conversion and penny pushing," said the group.

"Despite the fact that the tax increase would require additional capital investment," complained Madler, the governor's plan calls for a reduction in the tax service discount per 60 carton cigarette case from $1.12 cents to $1.08.

(The governor's plan also calls for a 15 per cent wholesale sales tax on cigars and other tobacco products, which have been exempt during the 20 years the state has levied upon cigarette sales.)

"The Big Move," filmed in actual suburban surroundings throughout the country, will examine the "weekend father," the new matriarchy, the lost art of privacy and conformity.

"The Shape of Things," a filmed documentary, will rely heavily on the work and ideas of Mies Van Der Rohe and Frank Lloyd Wright.

"World in Our Hands," the education special, will examine secondary and high schools in rural areas, small towns and sprawling metropolitan centers.

Playdates will be announced later.

Experiment Flops

Boos Greet 'First Afternoon' Attempt to End First Nights

BY DENNIS NEEDLES

London —(AP)—Impresario Peter Saunders glumly confessed today that his bid to end the first night had flopped.

Saunders wanted to launch his new show "And Suddenly It's Spring" without the hazards of "all those terrible socialities who are interested only in the occasion or each other."

He staged a first afternoon instead.

But the usual socialites filled the stalls at the Duke of York's theater, and a storm of booing from the gallery greeted the final curtain.

Not Funny at 3 p.m. The first afternooners liked neither the time nor the play.

Said one critic: "This comedy seemed to me no funnier at 3 p.m. than it would have been at 7:30."

"Obviously there was a lot of resentment from a number of people," Saunders mourned. "I've had a couple of anonymous letters accusing me of trying to keep the regular galleries away."

"I thought we'd get the real theatergoers, a cross-section of the people who go to plays. But unfortunately the same people turned up."

"I tore myself away from watching a case at the law courts to get here," said Edward Suto, who hasn't missed a first night since 1929.

"But how can you capture the glamor of a premiere in the afternoon?"

"There was no atmosphere," said Leslie Bloom, president of the galleries' society. "The audience was dead. The same people were in the stalls but most of the gallery chaps couldn't go because they had to work."

"I predict this will be the first and last time such a thing occurs."

Opera Buff to Make Debut in 'Gypsy Baron'

Actor Son of Great Metropolitan Tenor To Realize Dream

BY HUGH A. MULLIGAN

New York —(AP)—By Thanksgiving morning, actor Walter Slezak won't be frustrated any more.

"I'm singing at the Met the night before," Slezak announced. "My one frustration in life is that I never sang in opera. Never had a voice. And now here, I am singing at the greatest of them all. Frightening. Absolutely frightening."

A massive sigh rumbles from his mountainous frame as he pondered the enormity of his courage in accepting Rudolf Bing's invitation to sing the role of Zsupan, the pig farmer, in Johann Strauss' "The Gypsy Baron."

Great Moment This the the Met's big new production of the year and it is the moment Slezak has waited for all his life.

Just 50 years ago, almost to the day, his father, Leo Slezak, made his operatic debut on the same stage in Verdi's "Otello."

Leo Slezak went on to become one of the great tenors, a contemporary of Caruso.

Young Walter, who watched that night in knee pants from a balcony seat, went on to become one of the theater's great opera buffs, an enthusiast who played hooky from Shubert's Alley at every opportunity to catch an act or two at the Met.

Knows Opera His knowledge of opera is enormous. For the sheer joy of it, he has been a regular panelist on the "Metropolitan Quiz of the Air," more than holding his own with the real experts.

Slezak's frankness about not having an operatic voice doesn't mean he can't sing.

When the great gold curtain ascends on "The Gypsy Baron," opera buff Walter Slezak will find himself sharing the stage with Lisa Della Casa, Regina Resnik, Laurel Hurley, Mignon Dunn, Nicolai Gedda and other great singers of the Met. He will be at once the happiest and the most frightened man in the house.

"You know," he mused, "There's something symbolic about opening on the night before Thanksgiving. This could turn out to be a big turkey, or else I could really have something to be thankful for."

Lodge Calls For Continued Hungary Probe

United Nations, N.Y. —(AP)—Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge declared Monday the "end of the reign of terror is not yet in sight" in communist Hungary. He called for full U.N. debate on the situation.

The U.S. representative spoke before the 21-nation steering committee of the general assembly, which is considering a U.S. request for inclusion of the Hungarian problem on the assembly's current agenda.

Lodge said there is evidence more Hungarian rebels have been put to death since the assembly met last year and "there are disturbing rumors that more executions are pending."

School Staff Hears Mann on Statement

Doesn't Like New Definition Of Purpose; Seeks Own Addition

School staff members have heard Supt. John P. Mann's explanation of the new statement of purpose, but they are unhappy with it, the administrator's committee report to the board of education Monday night stated.

Previously, three board members said the staff's earlier refusal to hear Mann's explanation of the 2-sentence restatement of a 4-page document constituted "lack of confidence" in the superintendent. They added, however, they would consider any changes proposed by staff members.

The staff objects to the new statement because it is open to various interpretations, it lacks a definite means of implementation and a sense of direction, the staff report said.

Addition Committee
A staff committee has been set up to write an addition to the statement, which then will be submitted to the board for approval. The committee was told the statement must be short, concise and in agreement with the previous restatement. The restatement reads:

"The purpose of the Appleton public schools is to impart the accumulated knowledge of mankind by effective teaching. Each child, through learning and developing his mind and talents to capacity, will be enabled and encouraged to contribute to the progress of civilization."

Mann's Explanation
Mann told his staff the board thought the previous 4-page document was too restrictive and it wanted a broader, more permissive, less restrictive statement. He said there was no intent to eliminate anything currently practiced in the system.

"The board does not intend to dictate what to teach or how to teach, but will leave these matters to the professional staff," Mann reportedly told the administrators.

He defined knowledge as "familiarity gained by actual experience," effective teaching as "the development by the teacher of avenues of learning which will aid and encourage the child to work up to capacity," the mind as "the subject of consciousness—that which perceives, feels, wills and thinks, in association with emotion," and talent as "the pre-eminent aptitude or natural endowments."

Dr. Dooley Winning Bout With Cancer

St. Louis — Dr. Thomas A. Dooley says he has won his battle against cancer, at least for the present, and will return to his hospital in Laos Dec. 4.

The St. Louis missionary, who has been on a national fund-raising tour for Medico, said there is always the possibility of a return.

A cancer was removed from his chest wall Aug. 28. But tests in New York yesterday showed no extension of the cancer and the doctors approved his return to Laos.

"I'll have to have a monthly checkup, but it is one I can do myself," he said.

Was in Appleton
Dr. Dooley appeared in Appleton Oct. 16 on one leg of his fund-raising tour that took him across the continent three times. While in Appleton, he said his doctors had given him a 50-50 chance to live to be an old man.

"If I can survive this tour, then I can survive anything," he said.

Since his appearances in Appleton, he has been the featured guest on several national television shows including "This Is Your Life" and "What's My Line?"

Dr. Dooley is the founder of Medico, a charitable organization which establishes hospitals in underdeveloped areas.

Steel Worker Hurt in Fall From Scaffold

Walter G. Bain, formerly of 115 Gardners row, received a fractured skull and a back injury Sunday in a 15-foot fall from a scaffold while welding metal sheets on an International Harvester company plant in Milwaukee.

Bain was working for the Worden-Alten company. He was taken to Johnston Municipal hospital, Milwaukee. It is believed the Bain family now lives at 722 E. Murray avenue.

outside the state and its tax jurisdiction.

All of the 6 cents a gallon motor fuel tax is refunded under present law to those who claim it.

Aviation interests resisted the plan at recent hearings, and the legislature heard a report that two out of the three commercial airlines operating in Wisconsin are showing net operating losses on their income tax returns.

Sen. Lynn Staibbaum, Racine, a Democratic member of the finance group, announced he intends to offer a plan for a "use tax" on airplanes to raise money for airport construction and similar purposes. The Nelson plan also would have pledged the motor fuel tax income to aviation services.

School Board Roundup

New Edison Ramp Problems Settled

The new Edison school will have a basement storage room served by a driving ramp, but the ramp will not affect the playground area, the board of education has decided.

The ramp will serve the east side of the building, with a driveway from North street. Cars and trucks can back down it to unload, then pull away. The 4,500-square-foot storage room can be used for storing a jeep or tractor when necessary and will be equipped with an 8-foot door.

Previously board members asked for a sidewalk elevator to serve the storage room, which will be used as a central school warehouse, but the largest possible elevator could not hold a teacher's desk.

Goodland Field

Use by Appleton High school's football team of Goodland field for home games will be investigated by Supt. John P. Mann and AHS Principal H. H. Heible, the board decided.

The two will talk to Elmer W. Grover, director of city recreation, to determine whether more bleachers can be obtained and whether a small heater can be installed in the ticket booth. Unless AHS can use Goodfield field, it will have to play three home games Friday afternoons on Lawrence's Whiting field, Mann said.

Budget Revision

Supt. Mann and Director of Business Affairs William R. Knuth are working on budget revisions to adjust to the 14 per cent budget cut approved by the city council. The revisions will be studied at the next board meeting.

Richmond Inspection

The board will inspect the addition to Richmond school at 9 a.m., Saturday, Dec. 5. Architect George Narovec reported the addition is completed except for two minor installations which will be made before Dec. 5.

New Superintendent

Education committee members met with State Supt. of Schools George Watson and representatives of the University of Wisconsin Nov. 17 to discuss preliminary plans for finding a new superintendent. The committee also has received a letter of application for the job from Dr. Carl Eisemann, district administrator for the Lakeland area, Minocqua. Eisemann has his Ph.D. in education administration from the UW and was an assistant professor of education at a UW extension.

District Law Affects Sites, Mann States

Changes Picture For Appleton School Expansion

The new state law requiring all school districts without high schools to become part of a high school district by 1962 will have a great effect on Appleton school building plans, the board of education was told by Supt. of Schools John P. Mann Monday night.

The board may have to adjust its thinking about placement of a new junior high school for the north side of the city and for a grade school on the southeast side, he said.

Previously, the board of public works turned down a bid for a northeast site junior high school site requested by the school board because it felt the site should have been farther east. The new law changes that requirement, Mann said, because now the school will have to be planned to include five rural schools on the north and west sides of the city. At least two of the schools already have five or six classrooms operating, Mann reported.

No Options
The board has no options for a junior high school site, but has two informal offers for southeast grade school sites and is seeking a third.

Mann said the board should seek a centrally-located, 10-acre southeast site large enough for 750 to 900-student school, with expansion possibilities. Mann and the board agreed a site somewhere near Schaefer park would be ideal, but they thought another site north of Newberry street eventually would be necessary. Both sites would be fairly near the Speel school district, one of the six that probably will be attached to Appleton by 1961.

Nearing Kimberly
One of the offers for a school site has been by the Land Associates, Inc., which is developing property north of Newberry street, between the Appleton city limits and the Kimberly village limits. The other offer is for property south of Schaefer park, which the school board did not think would be needed for many years.

The six school districts that may be attached to Appleton are Twin Willows with 91 pupils, Woodlawn with 123 pupils, Triangle with 29 pupils,

Cardinal Cushing Hails New Pius XII Library in St. Louis

St. Louis — Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston says the new Pius XII Memorial library holds "the greatest single extant treasury of world culture and scholarship."

He spoke Sunday night at a St. Louis university founders day dinner. The $4 million library, dedicated Sunday, contains some 600,000 microfilm-ed Vatican manuscripts.

Cardinal Cushing said it was fitting that a modern library should "perpetuate the name of such a scholar-pope, who realized the house that wisdom builds for itself is never an ivory tower."

Robert D. Murphy, under-secretary of state, advised the gathering not to regard culture "merely as an adornment of the idle."

"Sometimes it is regarded as symphony concerts on Saturday night or Book club meetings at the public library," he said. "In areas like the Soviet Union it may mean everything from mechanical processes to moon probes and ballet."

Comedian Bob Hope also appeared. His daughter, Linda, is a student at the university.

St. John to Meet Wausau On Wednesday

Dutchmen Seek Initial Victory Of Young Season

Little Chute — In its second start of the season, the St. John High school basketball team will travel to Wausau Wednesday night to meet Cardinal Newman.

Coach Bill Fitzpatrick's cagers dropped their season opener Saturday to Wayland academy by a 51-47 count. A fourth quarter rally by the Chuters which netted 22 points fell short.

3 Starters Back Against Newman, the Dutchmen will be facing a veteran squad as the Wausau club has three starters back and a host of lettermen.

Last season Wausau and the Chuters split two games. St. John won the game here by a 54-50 score and then lost on the Newman court by a 70-66 margin.

Veterans back for the Wausau team include Jerry Neiman, Jim Gienetzke, Ron Onopa, Jack Koltes, John Onopa, Jim McCann, Dick Malak, Tim Tranetzke and Tony Tyskiewica.

The St. John starting lineup will probably consist of Ed Hammen, Ady Ebben, Harold Hietpas, Mike Bongor and Roy Vandenberg or Tom Verhagen.

Kaukauna to Play Sheboygan North in 1st Home Cage Game

Kaukauna — Fresh from a convincing victory over Wausau High in the season opener, Kaukauna's basketball team will entertain Sheboygan North Wednesday night.

This will be the first home game for the Ghosts who will be in their second non-conference tilt of the campaign.

Coach Jerry Hopfensperger was pleased with the all-around play of the Ghost squad in the first game. Leroy Weyenberg, last year's leading scorer for the Ghosts, got off on the right foot by pouring in 25 points against the Lumberjacks.

Sheboygan North has four returnees from last season's squad which drubbed Kaukauna 95-63 in a early season encounter. North will be without "Chuck" Klauck and Jerry Hummitch who scored 55 points between them in last year's game. Both have graduated.

Players back for the Sheboygan team include James Carpenter, Bob Barton, Walt Graumann and Kenneth Meyer.

Other members of the North squad are Wayne Call, Bill Dwyre, Chuck Green, Rich Hartman, Chuck Huibregtske, Jerry Laack, Ken Leibham, Fred Pils, Tom Siebert and Earl Vande Wege.

Kaukauna is expected to start the same five men who played practically the entire game against Wausau. This lineup includes Jim Steger, Myron Zachowski, Weyenberg, Bill Borchardt and Ken Kav-

Extension of Nuclear Test Ban Expected

Eisenhower Believed Ready to Continue Bar During Talks

Washington — President Eisenhower now seems certain to order an extension of the U. S. ban on nuclear weapons tests — but for a few weeks only. Further extensions could follow.

Administration leaders are prepared to go along with a United Nations resolution, adopted Saturday, opposing any resumption of nuclear tests during negotiations for a permanent, policed test ban.

But the negotiations themselves are expected to come to a climax at Geneva in the first half of 1960 and a breakdown of the conference, now more than a year old, would bring a quick resumption of underground nuclear test explosions by the United States.

Eisenhower already has extended for two months — until Dec. 31 — the 1-year U. S. respite he originally put into effect at the end of October, 1958. He thus has more than a month during which he can act to keep the ban in effect.

Keep Up Pressure. One tactical objective of the administration at the present time is to try to maintain the pressure on the Soviet government to keep the Geneva negotiations moving along.

The latest word on administration thinking came Sunday night from Chairman John A. McCone of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Opposing any prolonged extension on the present test ban, he said any such action should be taken on a week-to-week basis.

McCone also said he thought a Soviet suggestion for joint U. S.-Russian construction and operation of a gigantic atom-smasher for nuclear research was "well worth studying."

Join Cooperative

Other countries might want to join in such a cooperative enterprise, he said, agreeing, as a Soviet atomic leader suggested last week, that there is need for only one super atom smasher.

The United States and Russia announced a new 2-year cultural, technical, scientific and educational exchange agreement in Moscow Saturday. They pledged themselves to study the possibility of cooperative enterprises in the peaceful uses of atomic energy, and they projected immediate joint efforts in the conquest of disease.

The U. N. general assembly in New York voted 60-1 Saturday for a resolution asking all countries to refrain from atomic test explosions during the 3-power talks at Geneva.

Senate Backs Stiff Laws on College Loans

Students Shouldn't Resent Oath, Some Lawmakers Say

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington — Congress has appropriated $31,000,000 a year under the National Defense act for loans to needy students provided they sign an anti-communist affidavit and an oath of allegiance to uphold the government of the United States.

But 12 universities and colleges, out of 1,370 institutions in the program, now refuse to continue under it. They declare the anti-communist stipulation raises unnecessarily a suspicion of disloyalty.

The colleges are required by law to provide only $1 of their own funds for every $9 furnished by the federal government, but the educational institutions say they are obliged to act as agents of the government in allocating the money.

Most of the institutions which have declined to cooperate in the program can finance needy students in other ways. John F. Morse, administrator of the loan fund in the office of education here, says:

Object to Affidavit
"This act was passed for the benefit of needy students, not for the institutions. Wealthy institutions may well provide these benefits from other sources, but there are a number of institutions which, if they were to take the stand Harvard, Yale and others have taken, would literally force students out of college."

say they don't object to the taking of the oath of allegiance by the students, but they do not want to see an anti-communist affidavit included. They argue it is unnecessary and singles the students out as a class. Several senators reply to take the oath and refuse to sign the anti-communist affidavit is a contradiction. Sen. Bridges, New Hampshire Republican, says students should deem it an honor to sign the document in question.

The net result may be the passage by congress of a law which in some respects will be stiffer. Amendments which would repeal the existing provision and make it a felony to accept a loan under the program and then participate in communist organizations or advocate the overthrow of our government by illegal means.

He would be required to take the same oath of allegiance which is prescribed for members of the armed forces, for members of congress and for employees of the federal government generally.

The temper of the majority

Indians Told of Strength to Bar Encroachments

New Delhi — India's top officials told their 400 million countrymen over the weekend that the government has taken all measures necessary to defend the northern frontier against any further communist Chinese encroachments.

Speaking on the 10th anniversary of the formation of India's territorial army, Prime Minister Nehru asked the people to join that auxiliary militia in large numbers to meet threats posed by red China.

Nehru also suggested that India's 40 million students get compulsory military training but vetoed suggestions for conscription.

Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon told an audience in Bombay his ministry has "taken all steps" to defend the 2,500-mile border with red China and "we are strong enough to defend our sovereignty and resist aggression."

Tries to Clear His Conscience on Trip

Carbon Hill, Ala. — H. D. Deavours still hasn't paid his 63-year-old debt to the Frisco railroad, but he has a clear conscience nowadays.

Deavours, 81, dropped by the Frisco office and offered $1 to make up for the 35-cent fare he escaped paying by hiding in the wash room on a run from Carbon Hill to Glen Allen, Ala., in 1896.

Frisco Agent W. H. Byrd took the dollar bill, then gave Deavours another one in return, and called it even.

In the senate was reflected in the debate last summer over the proposed repeal of the "loyalty" section of the student-loan program, which motion was defeated by a 49-to-42 vote.

Sen. Russell, chairman of the armed services committee, said:

"We are getting into a queer state of affairs in this country when we cannot mention communism in connection with our colleges. I yield to no man in my respect for those who devote their lives to the administration of our great educational institutions. But in most instances they are far removed from the harsh realities of life. I shall not abandon my responsibility to undertake to protect the treasury of the United States from communist infiltrators merely because I am told that it is an insult to thousands of young men in this country who seek financial help from the government to go to college, to ask them to say that they are not communists, or to ask them to take an oath to support and defend the constitution of the United States."

Sen. Johnston of South Carolina Democrat, said:

"In the subcommittee on internal security, we have found a pattern. The communists use the students within the college to further their purpose."

"If he let one such person into a college... he will be protected to a certain extent because the student body will say that he is attending the college because of payments he is receiving from the government of the United States, and that tends to turn suspicion away from that individual. That is one reason I want to throw all the protections possible around those whom we assist as students in the colleges of the United States."

To the argument that communists lie anyhow and hence the oath is superfluous or ineffectual, many senators have replied by referring to the case of Alger Hiss. Because of technicalities, he couldn't be prosecuted for communist associations under then existing laws, but was jailed for perjury because he lied under oath to a congressional committee.

Airline Declines to Meet With County

North Central Wires Position, Won't Comment on Port Moving

North Central Airlines today declined to meet with Outagamie county's airport committee and the state aeronautical commission's director and staff. North Central also declined to take a position on improving or relocating the Outagamie county airport.

North Central sent Mark Catlin, committee chairman, a telegram declining the meeting and stating the telegram made its position clear.

North Central's "primary interest is in operating from an airport which will service the largest number of people with the greatest possible flight frequency."

"North Central's equipment program will be expanded considerably within the next few months and it is quite possible that within the next two years we will not be operating DC-3 aircraft in or out of Appleton or Oshkosh.

"The present schedule for serving both these cities combined with the limited facilities at Appleton precludes anything but the minimum of number of flights and these with DC-3 aircraft only," telegraphed A. D. Niemeyer, North Central vice president of flight operations.

Niemeyer said the airline could not favor a new airport if the present port could be enlarged to accommodate Convair or larger planes.

However, he stated, "if the present airport, which is thoroughly inadequate for insuring reliable service, cannot be expanded to provide at least one runway with an effective length of 5,000 feet and a cross runway with an effective length of 4,000 feet, then the additional expenditures of money at the present site is not justified."

The civil aeronautics board, Niemeyer continued, "has never required an airline to maintain schedules with the smaller equipment in order to serve all the stops on a given route. It has been the responsibility of the cities to provide adequate airports and runways consistent with the growth of the industry and the improvement of operating equipment."

In the wake of reading this to his committee, Catlin commented, "It seems that North Central doesn't much care what we do with the airport, that it doesn't care whether we have service or not."

The airport committee learned from Thomas K. Jordan, aeronautical commission director, that the county's application for federal aid for any work at the airport had to be submitted by Dec. 15. The committee authorized the commission to apply for enough funds to extend the present runway to a 6,000-foot paved length, 5,200-foot instrument approach usable length, and for enough land to build the extension. The proposed cross runway and other construction thus was put off into the future.

Work in 1961 If the federal aviation agency approves the application, probably about February, the county would have to commit itself to the program or reject it by the fall of 1960. Construction would begin in the summer of 1961.

The 1961 construction year is the last one authorized by congress and if the county does not apply for aid to be spent that year, it is unclear when any work would be done on the airport. There is not time to make a survey on another location and obtain aid for the 1961 season, Catlin pointed out.

Another meeting between the committee and Jordan is slated before Dec. 15 to iron out the final runway extension plans and land needed.

State Conservation Appointees Democrats

GOP Senators Expected to OK Lynch, Olson

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Madison — Because Gov. Gaylord Nelson has made the issue of conservation department program reform a major one during his term, there is exceptional interest in the backgrounds and attitudes of his first two nominees to the policy-making state conservation commission.

John Lynch, of Gordon, and Paul J. Olson, Madison, are recognized leaders in the field of Wisconsin conservation through their private activities over many years and thus meet the technical qualifications set out in the laws.

May Chide Nelson The Republican-controlled senate which must confirm them before they take their seats may also notice that both have political qualifications as loyal Democrats, although the circumstance is not likely to endanger their confirmation prospects. Republican governors of the past also named prominent Republicans to commission vacancies. Republican senators may be expected to chide Nelson for his choice of Democrats, however, after his demonstrations about Republicans "playing politics" with conservation.

Lynch is best known in conservation circles for his former service as chairman of the Wisconsin Conservation Congress, a representative advisory organization which is set up by statute to work with the conservation commission in the formulation of policy, including annual revisions of fish and game laws.

He is the proprietor of a general store at Gordon, in Douglas county in the far northern end of the state, where wildlife and conservation issues are more vital to the population than in most other districts of the state.

No Orders Olson is the principal of a school in Madison and an ardent local leader in conservation service projects, including youth reforestation activities. He has been widely honored for a program which enrolls Madison schoolboys in summer tree planting and other land cover improvement work, as a part of the Madison school curriculum.

Lynch is 51. Olson is 50. Olson has not held public office before, but has been an officer of the Madison Teachers' Union, an AFL affiliate.

Lynch has been a leader in public affairs in his own neighborhood and is now chairman of his county board.

It is widely assumed that Nelson's two choices will attempt to carry out some of his expressed wishes for a revision of conservation program emphasis, but Nelson, told reporters here this week that he has not explicitly told them what he wants them to do.

Shawano—Police are investigating two breakins believed to have been committed Saturday. A single burglar is suspected of both entries.

A burglar stole $245 from Shawano High school after he battered a 11 by 14-inch hole through the 10-inch concrete wall of the school vault. He entered the school by knocking in the door of library and the main office.

Entry was made into the Shawano Implement store by breaking the glass in front door. An attempt was made to break into the safe but it failed. A box of tools valued at about $275 was found near the door, leading police to believe the thief was scared away from the store.

Police believe there was only one burglar because a single set of footprints were found leading to the school.

Bacteria Thrives in Modern, Hurried Life

BY NORMA GAURN

New York — The family wash these days too often is a warm water witches brew. It stirs around bacteria but doesn't destroy it.

Rusharound Americans are prone to the quick shower, which refreshes the topside but is likely to leave the remainder undone.

Wall to wall carpeting, air conditioning, deep upholstered furniture—all aids to gracious living—also provide a fine living for ungracious germs.

These may sound like harsh words. But they come from an expert, Dr. Carl W. Walter, who says they're no exaggeration.

Dr. Walter has pioneered in tracking down the sources of hospital epidemics and infectious outbreaks. He is associate clinical professor of surgery at Harvard Medical school and a medical researcher at Peter Bent Brigham hospital in Boston.

Warning

His warning is this: new antibiotic-resistant germs are one of the most pressing health problems facing the nation.

In the past 20 years drugs have enabled us to stamp out or virtually eliminate most infectious diseases — mumps, measles, diphtheria.

But hospitals, set up for the collective care of the sick, concentrate disease. Unless there are rigid antiseptic controls, certain hardy strains of bacteria, known as staphylococci, can thrive and swap hosts with abandon.

This danger of cross infection is ever present in hospitals. And Dr. Walter says it is an increasing hazard in the home.

It can come from the newborn infant or freshly discharged hospital patient, or from some unknown carrier. In Boston, 97 families were infected by a babysitter who was a carrier.

"The problem," Dr. Walter says, "is to persuade the housewife, without alarming her unduly, to do the things that grandma used to do to control the skin infections caused by these bacteria."

He says that housewives, with every labor saving device at hand for cleanliness, feel it unnecessary to apply the most important ingredient: old fashioned elbow grease.

"Hygiene is almost a forgotten word today," Dr. Walter says. "Remember when every school had a class in it? We all need re-education on basic cleanliness."

Modern washing methods may be convenient, but are not as germ-killing as those when the housewife dumped the clothing in boiling water and gave it the scrub-board treatment.

"The modern washing machine doesn't have hot enough water to destroy bacteria, which requires 190 degrees for four minutes. The average home laundry is only 115 degrees — or less, when the housewife doesn't wait for hot enough water."

Chlorine bleach is a good disinfectant. But Dr. Walter says enough should be used to leave an odor. Only then do you know it is effective.

Take bed blankets:

Don't Take Time

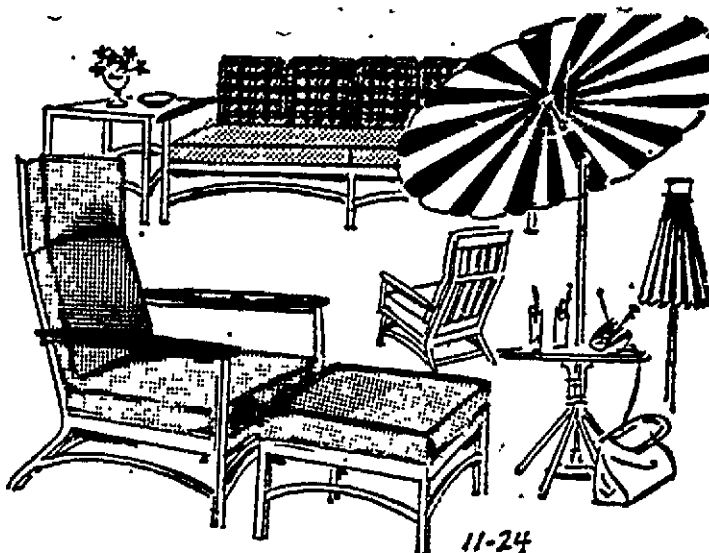

"These are marvelous dust catchers, yet they probably never get washed or cleaned more than twice a year. When they are washed, they should be soaked in disinfectant first. But whoever thinks of going to that much trouble?"

Upholstered furniture, wall to wall carpeting:

"More dust catchers, breed-

Design Award Winners—in Aluminum

Have a chair — a fashion-wise high-backed chair — in aluminum. Choose an outdoor umbrella to fold with a twist of the wrist — and it can be aluminum, too. Both are stand-outs that just won top awards in the Summer and Casual Furniture Manufacturers Association design contest, the chair as part of a grouping of deeply upholstered seating pieces and matching tables.

Aluminum furniture has come a long way to this point of grace and appropriateness to many rooms. The furniture is made of square and rectangular aluminum tubing, finished in gold or ivory, and designer Sheldon Rutter planned it for exclusive indoor use. Fabrics with more of today's favorite silky look than aluminum usually wears is suitable, for all the unquestioned sturdiness of the metal. The remarkable easy closing of the umbrella won for it along with its good looks. Multiple rigid sections for the top alternate appealing colors, and the umbrella weighs only 33 pounds instead of the 90 pounds that most aluminum umbrellas weigh.

SEND ME THE NEW KIT, PLEASE. We'll be glad to — when you write for Elizabeth Hillyer's FURNITURE ARRANGEMENT KIT, enclosing 50 cents. It provides 126 furniture cut-outs, floor plan paper, advice on how to plan ing places for infection. Furniture should always have washable covers — which should be cleaned often after every spring and fall. When wall to wall carpeting is cleaned, disinfectant should be used."

Dr. Walter sees the family bathroom as a crossroads for infection.

"Think of the toothbrush holder. It's damp, usually in a warm, humid place—a wonderful spot to swap germs. The cake of soap is another place for bacteria to grow and multiply. It should be rinsed well with hot water before using."

Other trouble spots: common use of a towel; bed pillows which should be cleaned by commercial processors; air conditioners and dirt room fans which make superb traps.

Scullcap Tea Settles Nerves, Aunt Cinda Says

Beattyville, Ky. — People don't know much about herb doctoring anymore and it's a shame, Mrs. Melvin Kincaid — Aunt Cinda — says.

"If women raising babies these days would dose the precious little things with warm catnip tea," she says, "they wouldn't have to be running to a doctor every other night."

Aunt Cinda has been using herbs most of her 75 years. She dosed all her own children with catnip tea. It's good for cramp and colds, she says, "And it makes a baby sleep so good."

No one who drank tea made from gravel plant ever suffered from gallstones, Aunt Cinda says. "It's a good kidney medicine, too."

Skullcap and boneset yield a bitter tea which will "settle the nerves" and break up colds and fevers, Aunt Cinda says.

Dollar vine tea will stop diarrhea. Wild cherry bark steeped in water is a good cough syrup and helps bolster the appetite.

A salve made from Balm of Gilead buds, elder and butter-sweet bark, mixed with tallow, reputedly heals sores, cuts and bruises. And prickly ash tea is recommended for asthma sufferers.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture seems to agree. It lists over 250 different species of roots, herbs and bark which are of great value in the manufacture of drugs.

Brillion Hunter Shot; Gun Did Not Explode

Brillion—Elmer Behnke, 41, was hit by a stray bullet Saturday. His gun did not explode.

Behnke was wounded about 6:45 a.m. Saturday while hunting in Strubing's woods, southwest of Brillion, with his brother-in-law, Victor Churney, also of Brillion. At the time it was believed Behnke's gun exploded when he fired at a deer.

However, further examination indicated he was struck in the back by a ricocheting bullet. The slug went through his shoulder and struck the shotgun butt just as Behnke shot at a deer.

The butt splintered and part of the slug careened into Behnke's forearm.

Churney took him to Calumet Memorial hospital, Chilton, for treatment. He was taken to Theda Clark hospital, Neenah, Monday for examination by a nerve specialist.

Association With Others Will Overcome Loneliness

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What could cause one to feel lonely, blue and nervous all the time? I can't sleep or eat. Is it bad for a lady to live alone? I am 65 and have been a widow nearly two years. — M. C. T."

Probably that will Dr. Molner do more to make you "lonely, blue and nervous" than living alone.

There is one important distinction to make, however. Living alone does not mean that no one else shares your house or your apartment. It means letting yourself be cut off from life.

Many times it is true that, at your age (or more, or less) people are left alone. Their children are grown and perhaps have moved away. Old friends have moved. Death has taken some. It is the pattern of living — as we grow older, we must be prepared to lose at least some of those we love, those we have known for decades.

But it does not mean that we need be lonely!

Include Other People

Occasionally two widows, or two sisters, or two friends of many years, share the same house or the same apartment, but obviously this is not always possible.

Let's say, for the sake of discussion, that you must live alone from that standpoint. There is nothing wrong with it — so long as you do not seal yourself off from life. A canary, a cat, a dog, or other pet can be a lot of company around the house. Some people with green thumbs find a great deal of companionship in plants blooming in pots on a window sill, or some ivy trained to grow up along a curtain at the window.

But the important thing still must be people. Live alone if it works out that way, but don't live your life alone. Do things with other people. There are church groups and a variety of clubs. There are also informal groups devoted to some hobby whether it is making pottery, or studying or filling a civic need.

In the cities, there often are golden age clubs, or senior citizen centers for people 65 and over.

Organize Groups

In smaller towns you may not have such centers, but you do, instead, find it easier to organize your own informal groups. Use your imagination — maybe organiz-

New Load of Snow Dumped On Fox Cities

The weatherman made a quick change in his plans and dumped snow and cold weather on the Fox Cities. He had promised a possibility of continued mild weather.

Light snow over the central and south portions of the state this morning made driving hazardous.

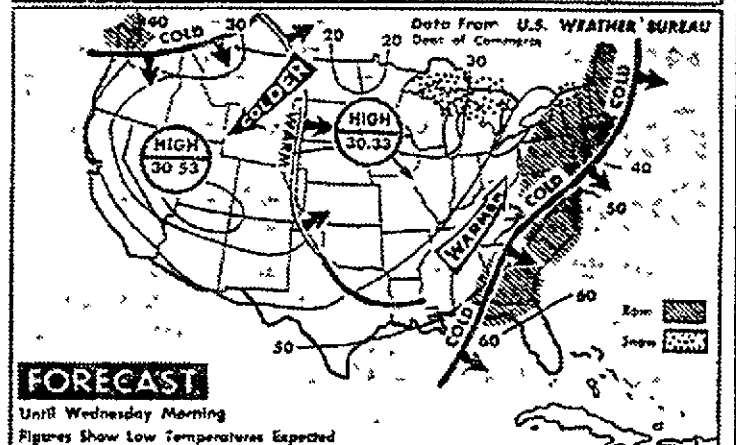

In the northern third of the state, where temperatures remained below freezing, stretches of icy roads exist.

Snow should diminish to flurries late today. Three-fourths of an inch fell in the Fox Cities between midnight and 11 a.m. Temperatures will be just below the freezing mark, with winds increasing.

Dry weather prevailed in the west, with snow and rain in eastern sections of the country.

GM Will Resume Operations Dec. 7

Detroit — General Motors corp., its automotive assembly lines shut down since Nov. 11 by a steel shortage, will begin passenger car assembly again Dec. 7.

John F. Gordon, GM president, said assembly plants to start up 13 days hence are at Detroit, at Willow Run, Mich., and at Janesville, Wis., Norwood, Ohio and Flint, Mich. Enough components will be available to operate four days during that week, the company said.

Gordon said all other GM car and truck divisions will resume operations Dec. 14 on a 5-day week basis. These divisions already are recalling employees for production of components.

In Good Taste Roommate Left Alone, Is Offended

Dear Mrs. Post: I have just returned home from a week's vacation in Florida. I went with a girl friend of mine and we shared a room together. While we were there, I met a very nice young man who was staying at the same hotel. He invited me to go out to dinner with him one evening. I accepted and when I told my girl friend about it, she was very peeved and said that I was very rude to go off and leave her alone. I was very much hurt by her attitude and thought her very unfair. I feel that I was perfectly right in accepting this invitation and just because we went away together was no reason why I had to spend all of my time with her. I would very much appreciate your opinion on this matter as it has caused a rift in our friendship.

Answer: If you gave your friend sufficient notice so that she could plan for her dinner without you, you were certainly not rude in accepting the young man's invitation.

Professional Name

Dear Mrs. Post: When our club news is written up for the paper, a friend insists that the name of a married woman musician on the program should be given as Mrs. John Doe. I think the musician's professional name should be used (Mary Doe or Mary Grant Doe or even Mary Grant) because her public doesn't connect her married name with the musician. I claim she is Mrs. John Doe socially and Mary Doe professionally. Will you please settle this controversy.

Answer: You are quite right, her professional name, not her social one, is correct in this instance.

Signing Cards

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell the correct way to sign Christmas cards when the family consists of mother, father and three children? Answer: You could sign it from, "The John Smiths — all five" or from "The Smiths — John, Mary, Johnny, Marie and Tim." There is no rule about anything as informal as this.

Mrs. Post offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning etiquette. If you would like to have her leaflet E-20, entitled, "Visiting Cards and When to Leave Them," send 10 cents in coin to Dept. E.P., care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N.Y.

Reception Welcomes Next Queen

Teheran, Iran—A Beautiful Farah Diba, Iran's future queen, drew cheers from 450 guests last night when she arrived for a banquet given by Queen Mother Taj Moluk at her summer palace on the outskirts of Teheran.

Farah wore the same blue-green silk gown from Paris she had on for the ceremony earlier yesterday in which she became officially engaged to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi. For the banquet she added a silk coat trimmed with brown fur and ribbon.

The 40-year-old shah joined his 21-year-old fiancée in a reception room. The couple laughed and talked as they posed for photographs. Farah toyed with the half-inch-square diamond engagement ring the shah had slipped on her finger in the afternoon.

The queen mother's banquet was a wedding reception for the shah's sister, Princess Fatima, who was married Sunday to Gen. Mohammed Khatami, commander of the Iranian Air Force.

During the evening a soloist sang a special wedding song, "May God Make It Prosperous." And though the song ostensibly was for Fatima and her new husband, it summed up the guests' hopes that the shah would this time get a son to succeed him on Iran's peacock throne.

The ruler and Farah will be married on Dec. 21 in a simple Moslem ceremony. He divorced his two previous wives because they did not give him a son. Only males can succeed to the throne in Moslem Iran.

After the banquet, Farah returned to the queen mother's winter palace in Teheran. She moved in yesterday after the engagement ceremony and will live there until the wedding.

James Trissel of Beloit won the $250 Milwaukee Journal prize for an oil, "I Have Known Romantic Poets."

A total of $1,535 in prize money went to 19 artists.

Dress Designing Pair Has Different Ways

Atlanta — Simonetta, the noted Italian couturiere, never asks her husband for his opinion on a design, although he too is a dress designer.

"Generally the dress he doesn't like is my best seller," she says.

"Every time he doesn't like it, and I believe in it, it has always been my hit."

Her husband is the equally famous Fabiani. Simonetta says, "We discuss business at home, but not fashion ideas. Neither of us wants to be influenced. The first time he sees my new collections are at rehearsals about four or five days before the collection is shown."

Simonetta, a striking brunette with brown dancing eyes, was in Atlanta for the beach.

Her fiancé is a graduate of the University of Wyoming.

Former Teacher Heads Die-Making Business

Cowlesville, N.Y. — When Arline E. Seipel lost her elementary school teaching job because she got married, it was actually a stroke of luck.

During World War II she took a job with a small die-making firm and, with her artistic ability as a valuable asset, advanced rapidly.

Today she is president and general manager of the company, Austin Dies, Inc., a $100,000-a-year industry turning out dies for such firms as Sylvania and General Electric.

Myron G. Austin, owner of the company, gives Arline the credit for its continual growth. The plant has been enlarged eight times since 1950.

The school in which she was teaching had a rule against employing married teachers. Now in addition to her executive duties, Arline cares for her family and manages a home next door to the plant. Her husband, Hollen, is an engineer. They have two sons, William, 13, and Robert, 6. She "retired" from the business for a short time after World War II but when Austin started a small shop in Eggersville, another Buffalo suburb, he asked Arline to come back to work.

She was reluctant so Austin moved his shop next door to the Seipels to make it easier for her.

"That was in 1950," Austin explains, "and we haven't stopped growing since."

Big industrial concerns soon "discovered" Arline. When they found she could "talk dies" they started asking for her.

"Send Arline over. We've got a problem," they phone. She's often asked how she can keep a home and an industry operating smoothly.

"It's part of my life," she says, "I don't know how I'd get along without it."

Your Problems

Sleight-of-Hand Artist Calls It Shrinkage; Ann Says Stealing

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been dating a very nice fellow for almost six months, but something about him disturbs me. By boy friend and his two buddies are furnishing their apartment. They think it's perfectly O.K. to swipe dishes, silverware, sugar bowls, ashtrays, napkins, anything they can get out of a restaurant without being seen. I've told him I won't go with him again if he lifts anything else. I'd die of shame if we ever got stopped on the way out. Everyone in the crowd says I'm a humorless drip and a wet blanket. They claim the prices in restaurants are pegged to take care of this sort right?—Nanette.

Dear Nanette: This sort of "shrinkage" is called stealing. The price of a meal in a restaurant does not include the silverware, napkins and sugar bowl. If more people behaved like this sleight-of-hand artist the restaurant owners would be forced to increase prices to absorb the cost of doing business with thieves.

DEAR ANN: Recently my husband and I moved into an apartment owned by my mother-in-law. It seemed like a good idea, excellent location, low rent and I've always been fond of my mother-in-law.
 The trouble is I can't get my husband's unmarried brother out of our apartment. He has a key and lets himself in when I'm at work and my husband is out of town. It's a terrible feeling to open the door and see him sitting there leaning at me.
 He has tried to kiss me and I've pushed him away. I think there must be something mentally wrong with him. When I tell him to leave he just sits there and smiles. I got desperate when my husband returned home from his last trip and I told him. He turned the thing around and said "you are the one who is sick. My brother is a swell person. You're imagining things."

 What can I do? I'm a nervous wreck.—Dora.
Dear Dora: Have the locks changed and insist that your brother-in-law not have a key. This should do it.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you read Ann Landers' booklet, "How to Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope. A Lovelier You
 By Mary Sue Miller
Satinizing Treatment
 To wear revealing after-dark fashions, a damsel needs what the French call "la belle poitrine." In free translation, this means a pretty chest, back and arms.
 Loveliness in those areas depends on trim lines and clear, glowing skin. A very simple but effective trimmer is found in this routine:
 Hold two small books in either hand and raise arms to shoulder level, stretching them as far behind body as possible. Circle arms from back to front; make 20 small circles, 20 medium-sized, 20 large. Work quickly, but do rest when you feel strain.
 To clear or tone up the skin, brush-scrub it during the daily bath. Add a grainy skin-cleanser to your suds, if blackheads or enlarged pores are a problem. Whiten and smooth elbows, as required, by massaging gently with pumice stone.
 On arising and retiring, massage a rich hand or body lotion into the skin. Start at the fingertips and work up to the shoulders. Using the palms of both hands, smooth the chest and throat upward. To make a thorough job of the back, use a long-handled sponge dampened with lotion. Petal skin results in no time!

Slimmers
 Let me help you with the problem of a too-fleshy arm, chest or upper back by sending you my leaflet, "Trimmers and Slimmers." It contains a set of co-ordinated spot reducing exercises — easy to do, quick to get results. Just write me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover handling.

Chamber Concert Climaxes Weekend Of Musical Treats

By Marguerite Schumann
 It is still early in the musical season, but already the faithful have callouses where they clap and where they sit.

Third concert in four nights of the cultural marathon called the Lawrence Music-Drama Festival year occurred Monday evening, and it was the final touch of colorful richness on what has indeed been a pre-Thanksgiving feast.

Friday there was a first-class singer of art songs from north of the border, Maureen Forrester. (Saturday, with any luck, your social schedule contained a sit-down dinner party.) Sunday it was back to the concert chairs again for a lively evening with the Lawrence symphony.

And Monday came the crowning touch — the chamber music of flutist Jean-Pierre Rampal and keyboard artist Robert Veyron-Lacroix. If the music had not all been uniformly fine in its class, there might be some alarming cases of esthetic bloat.

It is a lazy reviewer's dodge, surely, to quote comments vacuumed up at intermission, but let two be here recorded to show the high-quality of this fall. Observed one auditor as she smote her hands together: "What did we ever do without this building?" Said a second: "We've heard more good music this fall than we have in five years!"

That Lawrence's new Music-Drama center has sparked a renaissance can no longer be questioned. Rampal and Veyron-Lacroix are an amazing pair of young men who can electrify a couple of hours with the music of Bach and his chums, set next to Poulenc and his chums, with equally happy results in both idioms.

They are no hand-kissing, precious Frenchmen. There is a vast international zest in their music, but yet they retain the hallmark of the French — a consummate elegance.

Rampal's gleaming golden flute was felicitously wedded to Veyron-Lacroix's harpsichord and piano. Rempel himself played with a tone that was amazing in its size, beautifully graduated from bottom to top. His sound seemed like the trick of nature that produces the spinto soprano's big, light, floating cloudlike voice.

His was sharp, bright, focussed fluting, which grew and warmed within a phrase until the air crackled with excitement.

Veyron-Lacroix, alternating between the conservatory's Pleyel harpsichord (the same kind of instrument he owns at home) and the pianoforte, was thoroughly impressive in his twin techniques. His immensely tapered, spatulate hands purled off scale passages on either instrument with insouciant ease.

Together the men hit a style that was a skillful combination of the pasture and the drawing room — evoking that period of the monarchy when the fine ladies of the court played at being milkmaids. It was charming refinement without decadence.

First there was an elegant Couperin "Fourth Concert Royal," followed by Bach's Sonata in G minor — sparkling cascades of gems paid out by the handful into a golden cast. Beethoven's Duo in D major was a suave whirlwind, while after the interval there was Hindemith and Poulenc in the Sonatas in B flat major and the 1957 sonata respectively — all washed and crisp with freshness.

Small wonder that after such fare, four encores were demanded — a Siciliana by Bach, Debussy's "The Little Shepherd" and "Syrinx," winding up with a Rondo by Clementi.

Back came the queen of diamonds, and South played low. West also played low, and East held the trick. He continued with the jack of diamonds, and South perspired profusely but finally played low again. West had to win with the ace of diamonds, and that was the end of the defense. East could get a trick with the ace of hearts, but South easily had the rest.

At the other table Meredith held the East cards. When he won the second trick with the queen of hearts he failed to return the queen of diamonds. Instead, he returned his lowest diamond.

Now, for the last 200 years we've been teaching people to lead the queen from a suit headed by queen-jack-10. It works best practically all the time.

In this case, however, Meredith's unusual lead of the low diamond worked better. South covered with the nine of diamonds, and West won with what was going on but he had nothing better to do than to return a diamond.

This cooked declarer's goose. The diamonds were established, and East was sure to get in with the ace of hearts in time to cash the rest of his tricks. Down one.

On second thought, maybe

HIS AND HERS—

HE anxious to greet

Heart of Gold

"... He and I are quite incompatible but have managed to hang on to each other seven years."

Isn't it time you decided whether to accept your partner's suit or seek someone else? Your swift, disconnected script with letters of varied height indicate a cultured, intuitive mind and an intriguing personality. You are quick, impatient, gifted, frequently charming.

You like to be independent, yet you need a controlling hand. Though reserved, he has a subtly forceful personality. You may lean upon him more than you realize yet resent his dominance.

An outlet for your creative gifts might help. For instance, you might enjoy an evening class in short-story writing. This would give you a chance to meet others who are creative and interested in ideas like yourself.

If you marry this man appreciate and accept him for the generous, amiable, affectionate, down-to-earth person he is! Don't become frustrated trying to change him, for you might as well try to toss a ten-ton rock.

He'll probably always be difficult to impress, but he has a heart of gold. A capacity for making money is evident and the letter "g" stresses generosity to the point of altruism.

Miss Stafford welcomes letters from her readers. They cannot be acknowledged but the most interesting ones will be used in her column.

Analyze Reasons

Ponder Pupil Cost in Menasha, Higher Than Neenah, Appleton

Menasha — Why is the per-pupil cost in Menasha public schools $64 a year higher than in Neenah and $42 above Appleton?

The board of education Monday studied an analysis prepared by Supt. of Schools M. J. Gegan which offered several points in the whole answer:

1. Menasha's instruction costs are high because 53 per-

Board Hears Complaints on School Lunch

PTA Discussion Next Monday; May Change Offering

Menasha — In the face of complaints on the school hot lunch program, the board of education will attempt to find out what will satisfy the students, what it will cost and may offer it to them.

Discussion of the lunch program was touched off by Commissioner John Fitzpatrick, who read comments in the Junior - Senior High School PTA bulletin, one of which described the soup as "ofel," for "awful."

Before acting, the board decided to ascertain how valid the complaints are. The PTA group has four women working on another survey of the lunch program and its report will be given next Monday night.

One problem, Supt. of Schools M. J. Gegan pointed out, is that costs are relatively fixed, no matter how few or how many take part in the lunch program.

The district might have opposition from the department of public instruction if it set the per-lunch price above 30 cents, in order to pay for other fare than that offered now, Gegan added.

Board Pres. Ted Neely suggested a poll be taken of high school students to see what they would like for lunch. "No matter what we do, the menu will be subject to criticism. Are we taking the responsibility of providing a full course lunch?"

The lunch program is set up to recover almost all of its costs. Last school year, 75,523 meals were served to students. Income totaled $33,017 and expenses $33,436.

Average participation varied widely, from 573 a day in January 1959 to 362 in May. The peak day was Jan. 5, when 714 pupils were served.

Commissioner John Pawlowski said many high school students prefer to buy cupcakes for lunch at nearby grocery stores and take "the girlie" for a ride during lunch hour. "We're not going to satisfy them all."

Neely summed up board feeling by saying if malted milks, hamburgers and hot dogs are all the students want for lunch, find out what it will cost and offer it, on a break-even basis.

The present program uses federal surplus foods, distributed through the state agency. Nutrition standards set up by the agency must be observed, or the state aid will be withdrawn.

POST CRESCENT News of the Twin Cities Neenah - Menasha

Board to Protest '60 Budget Slash At Dec. 1 Hearing

Fitzpatrick, Snyder to Ask Council to Restore $40,000

Menasha — Two members of the board of education will protest a $40,000 school budget cut at next Tuesday's city council budget hearing.

Appearing for the board will be John Fitzpatrick, board vice president, and William Snyder, finance chairman.

Board President Ted R. Neely directed Supt. of Schools M. J. Gegan to tell administrative and faculty personnel some economies will be necessary unless the council restores the $40,000, bringing the total budget up to $912,965 for 1960, including $101,250 in two bond issue payments.

Items Deleted

The board recently cut $11,225 from the school budget in the following items:

$1,200, repainting the high school's third floor; $800, repainting the first floor of Nicolet school; $200, painting the Jefferson school gymnasium; $2,625, replacement of furniture in three rooms of Jefferson school; $1,200, used grand piano for the high school; $2,000, band instrument replacement; $2,200, small truck which was to be used for hauling hot lunches and other transportation. (The district has a contract with a taxicab line for transporting lunches this year, at $1,800), and $1,000, sidewalk repair at schools.

The board increased its estimated hot lunch receipts by $2,595.

The extra hoped-for receipts plus the deleted items total $13,620, or $26,180 less than the council has ordered cut.

Other Action

In other action, the board allowed the Twin City Trades and Labor council to use the high school auditorium and some classrooms Jan. 9, when four trade union experts will discuss the labor union movement with high school seniors and college students. Labor experts are Prof. Nathan P. Feinsinger, Jack Barbash and Harold Groves, all of the University of Wisconsin, and Brother John Connors, director of education of the AFL-CIO, Washington, D.C.

Approved use of Butte des Morts field by St. Mary High school football team for games Sept. 18, Oct. 8, 23 and 28, 1960.

Directed Gegan to have the athletic department study costs and the pros and cons of discontinuing night football games. One saving the board saw was in field lighting. The athletic staff will be asked for a recommendation.

To Meet Monthly

Decided to meet once monthly, beginning Dec. 14. The board will convene at 4 p.m. and continue until finished, then begin committee work.

Requested a philosophy of education be formulated for Menasha schools, as the Northwestern school survey has recommended. The board felt the staff should work out a formula for board approval. Board and faculty members will meet at 4 p.m. Dec. 7 on the philosophy discussion. Policies and procedures for the board and its committees will be worked out by the board.

Decided to meet on a Saturday early in 1960 with Dr. Jack Childress of Northwestern in a final discussion of the curriculum survey.

Ordered advertising for necessary junior high school equipment for Butte des Morts school and elementary school equipment in the next Sixth street school.

Those from the Twin Cities naturalized are Christian and Hermine Schneider, 165 N. Park avenue, Neenah, both of German birth; Dagobert and Hedwig O. H. Jaehrig, 419 Harrison street, Neenah; Germany; Manfred E. W. Jaehrig, 411 Harrison street, Neenah, Germany;

The two naturalized from Brillion are Feliks Grzeskowiak, of Poland, and his wife, Marga, of Germany.

Two Receive Fines on Deer, Tree Charges

Oshkosh — Erwin A. Farber, 59, route 2, Omro, was fined $50 and costs this morning by Municipal Judge S. J. Luchsinger after he pleaded guilty of possession of an untagged deer. He was arrested Saturday.

Theodore J. Wenzelow, 53, Milwaukee, pleaded guilty of transporting Christmas trees for sale without a license and was fined $10 and costs by Judge Luchsinger. Conservation officials said he had 43 trees when arrested.

She aimed and fired her 12-gauge shotgun at a deer, missed on the first shot and prepared to fire another time.

"Click," said the weapon. Mrs. Kuchenecker opened the shotgun to remedy the misfire and out popped her lipstick.

Paper Industry Group Hits at Proposed Farm Marketing Bills

Neenah — The executive committee of the Wisconsin Paper Industry Information Service today declared the bill with its proposed amendments, now before the state legislature, would place Wisconsin's forestry and paper-making industries "at a serious competitive disadvantage with those of neighboring states."

The Wisconsin Paper Industry Information Service, an association of major pulp and paper manufacturers in the state, referred to bills 810A and 657S now being considered by the state legislature.

The committee passed a resolution stating the proposed measure might well "deprive everything we've done in the last 10 years to increase the use of Wisconsin pulpwood and divert the millions of dollars we spend annually with Wisconsin tree farmers to suppliers in other states."

Causes Price Rise

Dr. W. R. Haselton, general manager of the Rhineland Paper company and chairman of the information service, explained that the two bills would "impose a costly marketing administration on pulpwood suppliers — many of them small tree farmers — and cause the price of Wisconsin pulpwood to rise without increasing the return to the pulpwood producer."

"Neighboring states, particularly Minnesota and Michigan, have a great surplus of pulpwood which they are eager to market in Wisconsin. No other state has such a burdensome marketing law."

Dr. Haselton said Wisconsin paper manufacturers preferred to use as much Wisconsin pulpwood as they could citing lower transportation costs as one reason. But, he added, if the pulpwood costs them more, whether it is in a higher pulpwood cost or in higher transportation to bring it in from other states, "where is this going to leave our industry in attempting to compete with paper manufacturers in other states?"

"Where will Wisconsin's estimated 10,000 pulpwood suppliers go for markets, if they can't compete in their own state? Will this great natural resource of ours, trees, simply stand and rot by the millions?"

40,000 Persons

He pointed out that the Wisconsin paper industry employs directly 40,000 persons, about 10 per cent of the state's manufacturing payroll. Wisconsin is the country's leading paper producer and annual sales amount to about $850,000,000 — virtually all of it money obtained outside the state and spent here.

Cooperation between the Wisconsin wood producers and the paper industry has more than doubled the quantity of Wisconsin pulpwood used to 812,000 cords annually and this could rise to 2 million cords by 1965, producing $40 million in revenue.

"The restrictions the director of the proposed marketing administration would be empowered to impose on purchases, production and sales of forest products would literally choke off the future growth of the industry in this state. No company will go forward with the large capital investments required for expanded productive capacity when the supply of raw materials can be cut back or wiped out by administrative fiat," Dr. Haselton cited.

Van Pelt Hits Importing of Foreign Cheese

Heads Delegation To Protest Change By Tariff Group

Washington — Cong. William K. Van Pelt, Republican representative from the Sixth district, testified Monday before the tariff commission that the dairy industry would be "adversely affected" if the importation of additional foreign cheese is authorized.

The congressman headed a delegation of Wisconsin cheese producers who came to Washington to protest proposals that more foreign-produced Edam and Gouda and Italian - type cheese be permitted to be sold in the United States market.

The tariff commission is making a study to determine if import quotas should be increased and is conducting hearings on the subject this week.

The Wisconsin representative said the government now owns 3.6 per cent more cheese than a year ago and that increased imports might require the government purchase of additional domestic surpluses.

Difficult Problem

The cheese industry is struggling with a difficult problem and should not be further handicapped by increased foreign competition at this time, he said. The problem prevails notwithstanding the fact that some cheese import quotas remained unfilled at the end of the licensing year, offering no justification for authorizing additional imports, it was mentioned.

Cong. Van Pelt pointed out that Wisconsin produces 30,320,000 pounds of cheese during September, a decrease of 1.7 per cent from a year ago.

Production of Italian cheese in Wisconsin increased by 2 per cent but the congressman told the commission producers of these dairy products must project their production for a year to two years in advance and that any revision on existing import quotas now would only result in confusion and additional problems in the future.

New Stop Light Proposed in 1960 Budget

Traffic Signal
Suggested for Cecil,
S. Commercial Corner

Neenah — Installation of a traffic light at the corner of Cecil and S. Commercial streets is provided for in the proposed city budget for 1960. Estimated cost for the installation is listed at $6,000 as one of the contemplated outlays. The total in outlays is $528,667.

Another outlay is a fence at the Oak Hill cemetery which will replace the one broken this fall in an accident when a stolen car struck the concrete wall and fence while trying to evade Neenah police.

The wall was extensively damaged by the impact and a section of the fence was knocked down. The estimated cost for this repair is $4,000 and is not recoverable in insurance from the car owner since the car was stolen.

Other Outlays
Other outlays contemplated for 1960 in the tentative budget are $17,500 for machinery purposes, $1,500 in land for streets, $1,900 for the board of health for a new car for the city nurse, $10,332 for the police department, $6,700 for the fire department, $20,000 for the city hall, $153,600 for sewer construction, $1,000 for plumbing installation, $500 for the director of public works office, $635 for the assessor, $18,800 for park and recreation, $32,400 for the machinery building and $253,800 for street construction.

The park and recreation budget and machinery building include the amounts charged to those departments for the $49,000 addition to the city garage. The $20,000 city hall outlay is for the remodeling of the present police station into an office for the treasurer and a new floor for the fire station.

The $153,600 sewer construction will be offset by special assessments of $101,100 for that work. This work will include sewer installations in the Kessler plat and the continuation of that in the Greenacres plat of the Gillingham farm.

The basic street construction project is S. Commercial street which is estimated at about $125,000. Street construction work assessments are expected to bring back $176,300 of the $253,800 cost. Included in the cost of the police department outlays is the conversion of the present police radio system to the newer system being adopted upon orders of the federal communications commission. Two new squad cars also are included among the outlays. Provision for a new fire truck makes up $5,000 of the fire department's $6,700 outlay, building up a fund to provide for the purchase of a new truck as recommended by the fire insurance underwriters.

Berko Portable Heater Was a Special Award made at an open house recently by Herbert Schuelke and company. The total electric home, owned by the Menasha Lumber and Fuel company, has a heating system installed by Schuelke. Above, left to right, are Schuelke, Jerry Eckrich of the Menasha Lumber, and the lucky recipients, Mr. and Mrs. George Fradrich, 817 Warsaw street, Menasha.

Glass electric radiant heating is an efficient system that gives a home the luxuriant warmth of June sunshine throughout the year, and now it is available in a portable unit with the same principle used as in home heating.

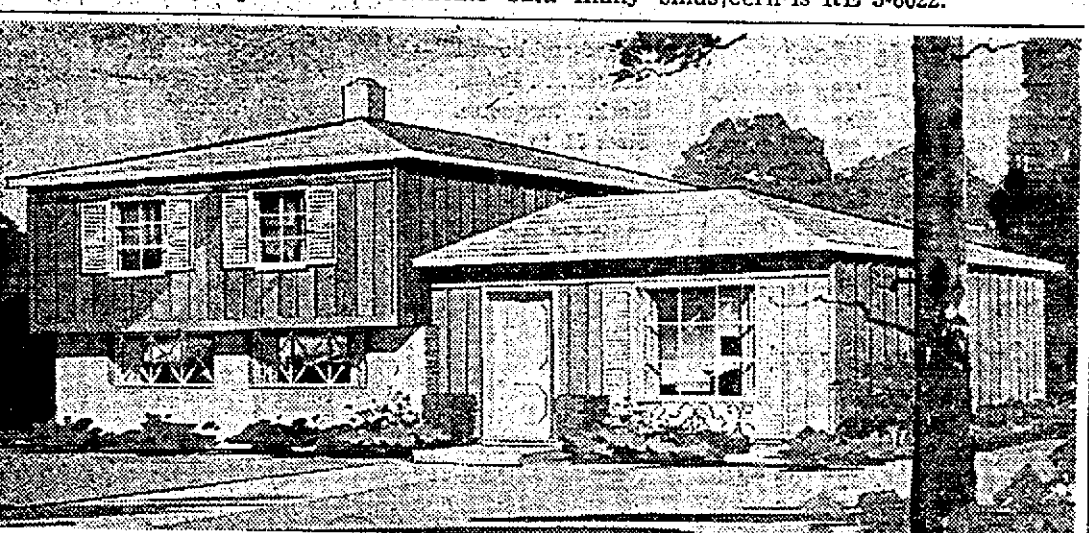

The portable radiant heater is perfectly safe, the H. Schuelke and company said today, because there are no dangerous "hot spots," no glowing coils or wires. It even shuts off automatically in case it accidentally tips over.

The heater is economical too. Normally selling at $69.95, as an introductory offer for a limited time only, Schuelke is selling the portable for $54.95. It draws very little electricity for the amount of heat output.

The thermostat is the only working part of the heater — there are no wires or anything to burn out. The heater will last a lifetime, Schuelke said. This lasting quality will also apply to home heating. Schuelke said many sinus and asthma sufferers are now using Berko heating in their bedrooms instead of hot air. Many others find that the infrared rays emitted by the heater are very good, also, he said.

"We'll heat anything—even the out of doors," Schuelke stated. This will be used on loading platforms or patios for all year living, he added. H. Schuelke and company is located on Waverly Beach, between Appleton and Menasha. The phone number at the concern is RE 3-8022.

New Split-Level Model Home, shown above will be available soon, according to E & R Construction company, Neenah, at the amazing low price of $13,875. E & R is located on Highway 41, just north of Neenah and the telephone number is PA 2-6466.

Erwin G. Rehbein, president of E & R Construction company of Neenah took a stab at reducing the rising cost of home construction this week with the announcement of a new split level planned to be sold for $13,875 plus lot.

The E & R company plans to show a model of this home early next spring, but officials of the firm were so enthused over the low price that a decision was made to announce the new home before the showing.

The new split level home has been planned primarily for families needing the extra room offered by the split arrangement. Square footage totals 1,778 feet. Three large bedrooms are situated in the upper level with provisions for adding two in the lower level if necessary.

Maintenance - free living will be one of the main features of the home. The Du Pont company has recently developed a lucite baked enamel finish for aluminum siding used on the home. This durable, fade-resistant siding will carry a written 15-year warranty. All windows, storms and screens are also aluminum with an acrylic finish, resulting in a home that is about as maintenance-free as is possible. While other home owners are spending time and money on paint and changing storm and screens, families in this home will have more time for leisure.

Franchised dealer for National Homes in this area is the E & R Construction company, north of Neenah on Highway 41. Telephone number at E & R is PA 2-6466.

One Regular, Five Reserves
Bolster Blue Devil Entry

Menasha — Two of the state's most prolific scoring high school basketball teams — St. Mary and North division of Milwaukee, will clash at Milwaukee Wednesday night in one of the early season's top-flight games.

North was runnerup to Milwaukee Lincoln in the WIAA state tournament at Madison last March. St. Mary placed second to champion Racine St. Catherine in the state Catholic High school tourney at Green Bay two weeks earlier.

The Blue Devils beat St. Mary 55-42 here last Nov. 23. That loss was the Menashans' third in four starts and they didn't suffer another setback until St. Catherine beat them in the state finals.

Posts 20-1 Record

North took a 20-1 record (the only loss being to Milwaukee Washington) into the state meet. Lincoln edged it 65-56 in the final contest. The

Pope John to Celebrate His 78th Birthday on Wednesday

Vatican City — Pope John XXIII will be 78 years old tomorrow.

There will be no special ceremonies, but the yellow and white banners of this 108-acre state will fly in honor of its absolute monarch, the share-cropper's son who became the spiritual ruler of the Roman Catholic church and its 500 million members little more than a year ago.

That year, the pope himself recently said, "went like a day." But during that "day" he created 23 new cardinals to bolster the thinned ranks of the college and bring its membership to a record 74. He announced a great ecumenical council to be held in about three years, aimed among other objectives at Christian unity of the world. He maintained the tempo of many audiences established by his predecessor, the late Pius XII.

The pope faces even busier days.

December Schedule

Immediately ahead of him, in December, is a "private" but nonetheless historic meeting with President Eisenhower. Only once before has a pope given audience to a president of the United States. That was in 1919, when Pope Benedict XV received Woodrow Wilson.

Also in December, Pope John has consistories to create eight more cardinals, including two from the United States. They are Archbishop Aloysius J. Muench of Fargo, N. D., and Archbishop Albert G. Meyer of Chicago. Once again, Pope John sets a record by bringing the college of cardinals' membership to 79, highest in history.

Invite Associates

The pope will begin the day tomorrow by celebrating his daily mass in his little private chapel. As he did on his birthday a year ago, he may ask membership to a record 74. He announced a great ecumenical council to be held in about three years, aimed among other objectives at Christian unity of the world. He maintained the tempo of many audiences established by his predecessor, the late Pius XII.

Words often misused: Avoid such expressions as, "I don't think I'll be able to go." You really ARE thinking. Instead, say, "I think I'll be unable to go."

Often mispronounced: Covert. Pronounce kuv-ert, and not koh-vert.

Word study: "Use a word three times and it is yours." Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day.

Today's word: masochist; one who derives gratification from suffering pain, humiliation, or the like. Pronounce mass-oh-kist, accent first syllable. ("The manner in which she has assumed the burdens of her family leads some people to believe she is a masochist.")

Traveling Game Provides Fun for Christmas Season

BY CAPPY DICK

With Christmas only a month away, the game idea described today is timely fun. In fact, it is a good stunt to plan for Christmas day itself if you are going to have a lot of friends at your home that day.

Get up invitations for the game in the form of flight tickets like that shown in Figure 1. Each folded section represents a stopover on Santa Claus' trip. The destinations can be any places in the world. For each stopping place a special game will be played.

The first stopping place, might be Iceland and the game to be played there can be "Freeze." Everyone must stop perfectly still in whatever position may be the instant the command is given. Anyone moving ever so slightly is out of the game which continues until one player is left. He is the winner for Iceland.

Other stops may be Jerusalem where "Musical Chairs" (sometimes called "Going to Jerusalem") is played; China, where the game of "Shoe-Hop" is played; Texas, where horse-shoes are played with rubber rings thrown over the necks of pop bottles (Figure 3); Hollywood, where some kind of

The game of "Shoe-Hop" (Figure 3) is fun. Everyone's shoes are placed in a row about 12 inches apart. Lanphear and Stalcup Picked On All-Star '11'

Three Wildcats Named to AP's All-Big 10 Team

Chicago —(AP)— Guard Bill Burrell of Illinois and tackle Dan Lanphear of Wisconsin were the only unanimous choices for the 1959 All-Big Ten football team selected by 12 Associated Press sports writers.

Wisconsin landed one other player — guard Jerry Stalcup — on the first team. Three Badgers were selected on the second team. They are quarterback Dale Hackbart, guard Ron Perkins and tackle Jim Heinke.

3 Wildcats Named Although Northwestern tallied after winning its first six games, the Wildcats landed three places on the AP's first team.

Burrell and Lanphear typify an outstanding 1959 crop of Big Ten linemen, which, throughout the season, stole much of the thunder of the backs.

Aligned with these two seniors on the first team were ends Jim Houston, Ohio State, and Don Norton, Iowa; tackle Joe Rutgens, Illinois; guard Jerry Stalcup, Wisconsin, and center Jim Andreotti. Topped by Rutgens at 245 pounds, the line averages 212. Norton, the conference's leading pass catcher, is the highest at 175.

Look at QB The No. 1 backfield consists of quarterback Dean Look, whose all-around play guided Michigan State to second place; halfback Bob Jeter of Iowa, the Big Ten's leading ground gainer; halfback Ron Burton of Northwestern, an explosive game-breaking runner and adept pass catcher; and fullback Mike Stock, Northwestern's rushing leader.

Repeaters from last year's all-Big Ten were Burton, Houston and Stalcup. Guard Ron Maltby of Purdue dropped from first to second team and injury-bothered fullback Bob White of Ohio State fell to the third team.

Roving Assignment Only one ballot kept Andreotti from unanimous recognition. Two others were shy of this by two votes — Stalcup and Burton.

Lanphear and Stalcup have been lauded by Coach Milt Bruhn for their ability to cut down opposing ball carriers and recovery of 18 enemy bobbles this fall is partially due to their smashing play. Stalcup has the roving assignment which calls for the

Mertes Resigns As K-S Coach

Manhattan, Kan. — (AP) — "Bus" Mertes, Kansas State football coach, is retiring and will become a professor.

"One thing is sure, though," Mertes said, "I want to get back in the game that has been my life for 25 years."

The 39-year-old Mertes, head coach for five years after two years as an assistant at K-State, resigned Monday in the wake of a 2-8 season. His record for five seasons is 15-34-1.

Athletic Director H. B. "Bebe" Lee said no application had been received, but a search for a new coach would start immediately.

Need 2 Weeks of Rest

Bruhn Says Badgers Hit Low Point In Illinois and Minnesota Games

Milwaukee — (AP) — Coach Milt Bruhn said Monday night that all he wants for his University of Wisconsin football team before the trip to the Rose Bowl is plenty of rest.

"We were a tired gang the last three weeks and it will take about two weeks of rest before the kids can sock like they were doing early in the season," Bruhn said.

Hit Peak Bruhn, his assistants, and Athletic Director Ivan Williamson were in town for Alumni and V club functions.

Williamson said the tentative departure date for the West coast is Dec. 18. He explained that this would give the players ample time to take things easy and that they would miss only one day of classroom work.

Bruhn said Wisconsin hit its peak in the 12-3 victory over Ohio State and began to lose its sting after the game with Michigan. The all-out performance in handling Northwestern, Bruhn said, sapped the players of most of their reserve energy.

The coach also said that he didn't believe the low point of the season came at the 21-0 defeat from Purdue.

"Despite the score, we played some good football," he said. "Our low point was in the last two games against Minnesota and Illinois."

Bruhn chuckled as he recalled leaving the field with the Illinois Coach Ray Eliot after the Illini scored a final second 9-6 victory over the Badgers.

"Eliot didn't say a word," Bruhn commented, "then he patted me on the shoulder and mumbled, 'Don't worry, coach, we'll take care of them for you next week.'"

Bruhn said the "them" meant Northwestern — and Northwestern lost to Illinois, 28-0.

Planning for Navy Game Nothing New For Army's Dale Hall

Coach Formerly Scouted Middies As Assistant

New York —(AP)— Saturday is Dale Hall's first Army-Navy game as head coach. Is the Army mentor worried?

Deer Harvest Moves Far Ahead of '58

Black River Falls —(AP)—The deer harvest for the 1959 hunting season has moved far ahead of last year, the Conservation department reported Monday.

Deer registrations reached 63,729 through Sunday night, the latest period for which an accurate count was available, compared with 55,369 at the same time in 1958. Does taken on party permits in the general buck areas accounted for about half the bag.

The harvest, by registration totals in the five area headquarters, showed:

- Northwest — 24,605, up 36 per cent, with 12,548 camp deer.
- Northeast — 20,580, up 12 per cent, with 11,319 camp deer.
- West Central — 4,142, down 57 per cent, with 797 camp deer.
- East Central — 7,057, up 47 per cent, with 3,962 camp deer.
- Southern — 3,003, up 50 per cent.

The six Mississippi river counties with an any deer season logged 4,342 registrations, up 45 per cent from 1958.

Stockton, Calif.—Benny Casing, 121, Stockton, stopped Ronnie Perez, 121, Mayward, Calif., 8.

me on the sidelines on Saturday.

Harp's reports to Hall, plus an exchange of films covering all but the game prior to the huge classic this Saturday in Philadelphia's Municipal stadium, have left the Cadets impressed with the Middies, despite their so-so 4-3-1 record.

Must Have Something "When only one soph (guard John Hewitt) can break into the first two units, then the club must have something," Hall said.

"They have two fine quarterbacks in Joe Tranchini and Jim Maxfield. Actually after last year's game (Army won 22-6), we figured that Tranchini would be one of the best quarterbacks in the country, and then Maxfield goes and beats him out in mid-season. Now we understand that Maxfield's injury (suffered against Maryland Nov. 7) is not as bad as anticipated and he is back working out."

"We'll be at a physical peak for the season," Hall said. "This should cut down our mistakes. We'll be playing the right backs in the slots where they belong and they'll be familiar with their duties."

"If Navy shakes their injuries, I really think this will be a battle of two of the country's finest teams that quite possibly could jell by the weekend."

Lanphear's best performance came in the Wisconsin-Ohio State game, a 12-3 victory for the Badgers. He blocked a punt to set up a safety in the opening minutes, recovered a fumble to halt an OSU drive and hit two players hard enough to put them out of the game.

Stalcup plans to be married at his hometown of Rockford, Ill., Thanksgiving day. Gossage Named

Little League Plans School For Umpires

Appleton's Little league baseball program will conduct an umpires' school early in 1960. The object is to develop uniformly high-caliber umpiring for the LL's second year of operation here.

Plans for the special school will be discussed during a Dec. 10 (7:30 p.m.) meeting at the home of H. J. "Kelly" Weller, 1748 N. Division street. Bob Willis and Ray Renier, who are to take charge of the umpiring school, will be on hand.

During the most recent LL meeting, officials voted to expand the complement to 12 teams next season. Six teams—a gain of two over 1959—will be assigned to each of two divisions. New sponsors for each of the four new teams are being sought.

With the bigger league, consideration is being given to increasing the schedule to 90 or 120 games. The final size of the schedule will depend on whether new diamonds are ready for use in 1960.

Penn State Fans Subdued About Liberty Bowl Berth

University Park, Pa. — Students and football fans in this university town greeted the news of Penn State's acceptance of the Liberty bowl bid with subdued enthusiasm. One observer said many students are waiting to see who would be state's opponent in the first Liberty bowl to be held Dec. 19 in Philadelphia's 100,000 seat Municipal stadium. Bowl officials haven't come up with an opponent yet.

In Philadelphia, Bud Dudley, a co-promoter of the bowl, said four teams are now under consideration.

They are Southeastern conference champion Georgia (8-1), Georgia Tech (6-3), SMU (5-3-1) and Navy (4-4-1).

Packers Aim For 5-5 Mark

Continued from page 7 for the Packers, with a light workout in the morning followed by Wally Cruice's weekly scouting report. Cruice scouted the Lion-Bear game last Sunday.

The brief practice was held on the north half of the City stadium gridiron. And the first and last Monday drill of the league season was not without incident—almost a tragic one.

Long Boyd Dowler went down and out for a pass and took the throw just inside the sidelines and then cut loose across the sidelines. Parked a couple of yards from the sidelines was a steel cylinder for rolling up the tarpaulin.

Saw Cylinder Dowler saw the cylinder at the last second and instantly performed a perfect hurdle to avert almost certain injury. He slipped to the ground on the other side but got up smiling.

The entire team, led by Lombardi, let loose a mighty cheer—in amazement at the beautiful high hurdle and relief that he was unhurt.

Fortunately, Dowler was a crack high hurdler at Colorado university. The cylinder, with tarpaulin wrapped around it, was about 40 inches high.

The Packers came out of the game in good physical condition and terrific spirits. Linebacker Tom Bettis is aching some, so is Em Tunnell. But both will be ready.

Tunnell left practice a bit early. "Playing so soon in the week is hard on an old guy," Em laughed as he headed for the clubhouse Monday. Tunnell came up with his first interception of the season vs. the Redskins and just for kicks he got his hand on a punt in the final seconds.

Feared Returner Once one of the most feared kick-returners in the pros, the Giant immortal went back as a single safety when Sam Baker punted. Em let the ball roll as a flock of Redskins surrounded the area. Then, unexpectedly, Tunnell shocked the Redskins and 31,873 spectators by picking up the ball and plunging ahead a few yards.

Long-time veterans like Em (in his eleventh season) generally suffer on an early-week game. It usually takes Tunnell until Friday or Saturday to shake off the aches but, as he put it, "I'll be all right once the game starts."

Revocation Adds Complications Cus D'Amato Seeks To Regain License

BY WHITNEY MARTIN New York — A "shocked and dismayed" Cus D'Amato expects to get back his license to manage and second fighters in New York state through legal action.

If that effort doesn't meet with success, the National Boxing association offers him a glimmer of hope he may be able to manage within its jurisdiction. That would give him most of the nation in which to operate as manager of former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson if Sweden's Ingemar Johansson will tackle, and Jim Martin, who is having a good year as an outside linebacker.

Cruice warned the Packers about the Lions' rugged defensive team. "That unit was hardly at fault in losing to the Bears," Wally said. The Lions fumbled and had passes intercepted to help the Bears win.

Four TD Passes The Lions were whipped in the second game here, 28-10, largely on Lamar McHan's four touchdown passes, but the Bays were throttled down to 112 yards rushing.

Lombardi noted while watching the movies of the Redskin game that "we ate them up on defense." The Redskins got only 67 yards passing. They made 200 on the ground but 79 of that was made by the quarterbacks who ran when the passing broke down.

The Lion classic will go on coast-to-coast television, with an audience of more than 50 million. Kickoff is set for 11 a.m. Green Bay time.

The Packers will fly over to Detroit via a chartered plane Wednesday and return right after the game—in time for turkey dinner.

Budweiser Pin Team Leads

Milwaukee — The Budweisers of St. Louis, defending champions in the 5-man National Match Bowling championships, held the lead today going into the last half of the round robin competition with a total point count of 30,098 and 6,598 pins.

The total is based on one point for each game won and one point for every 250 pins knocked down.

Falstaffs of St. Louis were second with 29,168 and 6,418 pins, followed by Hamms of Chicago with 28,047 and 6,297 and the Pfeiffers of Detroit with 25,141 and 6,141.

and to further complicate matters Rosensohn Enterprises, Inc., which holds the return bout contract, previously had its New York license revoked.

Bill Rosensohn, still holder of one-third interest in the promoting organization, Monday had his matchmaker's license suspended for three years.

In Geneva, Switzerland, Johansson reiterated his desire to give Patterson the first chance at the title. The champion obviously was elated when told that commissioner Julius Helfand had said Johansson could pick up his $152,000 purse for the June fight at any time. The purse is being held in escrow by the New York commission.

"We have no contract on file for a return fight," Helfand added.

Terror Five Will Invade Jays' Court

Wednesday will probably be 5-10 senior guard Jim Stenson and 6-1 junior forward Bill Prange.

John Matowitz, (6-1) who played with the JV's last season, and Bill Gerhard, 5-9, both are junior guards who will likely play against Appleton.

Will Press

Gajewski can be expected to have his charges press the good-sized Terrors on the familiar Menasha hard court. The Jays pressed in both their earlier games this season. Most of Appleton's experienced personnel lies in big front-court-men and the AHS guards could be bothered by an effective press.

Dick Emanuel will probably start the same quintet he did at Kimberly unless 6-3 senior Larold Lodholz earns himself a berth on the first five. "Lud," who rebounded well and tossed in 10 points at Kimberly, might be able to snare the job of either 6-3 junior Marty Schultz or 6-2 senior Paul VanderHeyden.

The first team designation of the other Appleton forecourtman, 6-5 senior Ron Abel is pretty secure. Abel, who missed all of last season with a knee injury, looked like he'd never been away Friday. He gained rebounding position niftily, blocked shots, and wheeled in seven baskets with a fine variety of shots.

Flying Colors Another sure starter is 6-0 junior guard Pete Treiber. A pre-season question marks as the replacement for the injured John Nussbaum, Treiber came through with flying colors at Kimberly.

He whipped home five baskets and eight (of eight) free throw tries and looked as good on the fast break as any of the speedy Papermakers. And, they're past masters of that form of attack. Pete was the only Appletonian who drove all the way "through" the basket on quick breaks. His teammates usually stopped 5-10 feet away and took short jump shots.

Treiber's fine spring was taking him right up near the rim on the drives.

Dave LaViolette, a 5-9 senior, will probably be at the other guard spot.

Menasha won last season's Appleton contest on Ristau's rebound basket with seven seconds to go in the second overtime. The Jays blew a 53-

Deer Kill Seems Heavy In Eau Claire Area

Hunting Pressure Drops Off After Weekend

BY JAY REED Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor

Eau Claire — The second half of the 1959 Wisconsin deer hunting season moved off to a good start here over the weekend. Indications are the kill will be heavy but total harvest figures for the area may be down slightly over a year ago.

Hunter success in other regions however may bring the state-wide kill up somewhere near the 100,000 mark anticipated before the start of shooting.

Gunners here in west central Wisconsin found opening weekend weather conditions almost perfect. The temperature remained in the low 30's through the first three days. There is not quite as much snow cover as some would prefer.

More Bucks However, in Buffalo county to the south of here, where the any deer portion of the season ended Monday, hunters are taking a larger proportion of bucks than does.

At the checking station in Alma 70 deer had been registered opening day and over half of them were bucks. The biggest deer we saw at the checking station was a 12-pointer which weighed 222 pounds. Another big one was an 11-pointer downed by C. E. Breen, Alma.

47 lead in the final 1 minute, 45 seconds of regulation time. Lodholz hit 14 points, Vanderheyden nine and LaViolette four for the losers while Ristau wired 15, Ritchie 10 and Prange four for Menasha.

Hunting pressure was heavy over the opening weekend but has dropped off to almost nothing now. Hunters working the hill country had far better success than those hunting the swamps.

High Water High water conditions hampered hunters in the marshes. It was difficult to move around. There is ice but not enough of it for safe walking. Many of the running sloughs are still open. As a result there are not enough hunters back in the real brush country to keep the deer moving.

This writer hunted the Cippewa river swamps with Glenn Seifert of nearby Nelson. I downed a nice 9-point buck about 11 a.m. Saturday. It weighed about 140 pounds but its rack was rather light in spite of the number of points. Seifert got a big 10 pointer Monday morning. We did not weigh it but it should go in the neighborhood of 180 pounds.

Charlie Talks About Famous Last Words, Some Droll, Others Deep

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

One thing leads to another, and on that not-so-wise and not-so-original observation I hang today's column. Recent dissertations herein on the subject of epitaphs and tombstones have led inexorably to a relative thereof—famous last words.

It is very difficult for me to believe that people do utter orotund statements when they approach the hour of their final award. Yet historians have recorded such final statements and the word has paid much attention to them. So death-bed philosophy must occur and I have no recourse except to take the word of those who report what these final statements were.

It is easier for me to believe that a man might say such a thing as did Franklin Delano Roosevelt ("I have a terrible headache") than that reported to have been said by "Old Bob LaFollette: "I am at peace with all the world, but there is still a lot of work I could do. I don't know how the people will feel toward me, but I shall take to the grave my love for them which has sustained me through life."

That statement, credited to LaFollette, is noble enough to satisfy anyone. But I — poor sceptic — always feel the hand of a public relations man. As a soldier I saw death many times. It was never pretty, and nobody ever said anything worth quoting except things like "I'm too hot," or "It's cold," or "My foot hurts."

But how can we gainsay those who have reported on the final words of great people?

Grim Humor
I think perhaps the drollest of all final words were those of a murderer, William Palmer, who was hanged. As he stepped on the trap of the gallows, he asked the hangman the silliest of all questions — "Are you sure it's safe?"

Not so droll, and not so brave was the effort of the Jacobite, Sir James Radcliffe, who attempted to bribe the executioner to insure himself a speedy departure. It is reported that he said:

"I am but a poor man; there's ten guineas for you. If I had more I would give it to you. I desire you to do your job so as to put me to the least misery you can."

On the other hand, Sir Walter Raleigh spoke boldly to the executioner, "What dost thou fear? Strike, man, strike!"

Vain Nero
The final words of Nero — perhaps remembered more than most other famous last words — seem reasonable in view of his great vanity. Said he with monumental immodesty: "Jupiter! What an artist is lost to the world — what an artist!"

Sour indeed, and bitter, were the final words of Eugene O'Neil, Jr., the ill-starred son of the ill-starred playwright. A suicide by poison, his final note read: "Never let it be said of O'Neil that he failed to empty a bottle." Perhaps it was in character.

In character, too — so I believe — was the jackal, Mussolini, who might have faced death bravely but did not. To the soldier who was aiming a rifle at him, Mussolini could find no round phrase to linger in history. Cravenly, he said: "But . . . but . . . Mr. Colonel!"

Scientific to the End
Dr. George Combe achieved both scientific objectivity and a personal expression when, on his death bed he said with some drollery, "From my present sensations, I should say that I am dying — and I am glad of it."

If I were to choose my favorite final statement from among the many I have found in my researches, I think I would select the words of the historian, Jean Baptiste Dubos, who said:

"Death is a law and not a punishment. Three things ought to console us for giving up life: The friends we have lost; the few persons worthy of being loved whom we leave behind us; and finally the memory of our stupidities and the assurance that they are now going to stop."

Also I like the pretty philosophy uttered by a chief of the Blackfoot Indians whose name, I regret, I have forgotten. He said:

Beautiful Thought
"A little while and I will be gone from among you, whither I cannot tell. From nowhere we come, into nowhere we go. What is life? It is the flash of a firefly in the night. It is the breath of a buffalo in the winter. It is a little shadow that runs across the grass and loses itself in the sunset."

When an English criminal, Noel Cream, was hanged the job was done a little too quickly. He started to make a statement when the hangman sprang the trap and silenced what might have been a confession of a series of crimes the world has long pondered over. Cream said, "I am Jack—". Authorities of the period feel certain that he was going to add two more words which would solve a mystery which has lasted to this day. The two words: "—the Ripper."

James Croll, an important Scottish geologist in his time, was amusing with his final statement. He was offered a little whiskey while on his deathbed, and he said, "Aye, I'll have a wee drop o' it. I don't think there's much fear o' me learning to drink now!"

Marie Antoinette's final statement comes near to being the absolute pinnacle of courtesy. Though she had small reason, indeed, to be polite to the burly executioner who was to behead her, she was humble (or wise) enough to do so. As she moved on the guillotine platform she accidentally stepped on the executioner's foot.

"Monsieur!", she said, "I beg your pardon!"

White Edging Planned for State Roads
Part of Highways 41 and 57 will be edged with painted white lines as part of the state plan to add 1,000 more miles of edged highway to the 1,500 miles already painted.

The lines are designed to warn motorists driving at night or in fog where the shoulder of the road begins. Highway 41 from Fond du Lac to Appleton and Highway 57 from Milwaukee to Green Bay will be edged when the program gets underway in spring.

The stripping is expected to cost $250,000. Some of the highways will have to be repainted every year, while other less used routes will last for two. Further tests will determine whether stripping program will be expanded beyond the 2,500 miles to be completed by next year.

Invisible Hand Turns Off Volcano
Honolulu (AP) — Like a giant faucet turned by an invisible hand, spectacular Kilauea volcano has abruptly ceased flowing.

Activity stopped Saturday night after a week of natural fireworks in which a fiery fountain of lava spouted to heights of more than 1,200 feet.

Volcanologist Jerry Eaton could offer no explanation for the sudden halt in the eruption which attracted thousands of sightseers. Lava still flowed close to the surface yesterday but the possibility of a renewed eruption narrowed by the hour, Eaton added.

He said it would take decades for the 100-acre lava bed to cool.

statement. He was offered a little whiskey while on his deathbed, and he said, "Aye, I'll have a wee drop o' it. I don't think there's much fear o' me learning to drink now!"

Marie Antoinette's final statement comes near to being the absolute pinnacle of courtesy. Though she had small reason, indeed, to be polite to the burly executioner who was to behead her, she was humble (or wise) enough to do so. As she moved on the guillotine platform she accidentally stepped on the executioner's foot.

"Monsieur!", she said, "I beg your pardon!"

president; Alice Gregorius, secretary; George Else, sergeant at arms, and Mrs. George Else, vice president.

SAC Given Full Use of 7 Air Corridors by FAA

Washington — (AP) — Seven huge air corridors have been made off limits for commercial and private aircraft to permit jet bombers to fly low-level training missions. The special lanes are 20 miles wide and up to 500 miles long. They will be closed to all aircraft except Strategic Air command bombers at specified hours each week day. Except in one instance they will be open to civilian planes on weekends. The Federal Aviation agency announced the establishment of the closed corridors last Nov. 4. Airports, air lines and fliers in the affected areas have been given detailed information on just how the program will operate.

Mr. Glenn H. Arthur
Advertising Director
Appleton Post-Crescent
Appleton, Wisconsin

Dear Mr. Arthur:

It is now two and a half years since we first opened our store here in the Valley Fair Shopping Center. In that period of time our business has grown to the point that it has been necessary for us to make arrangements to double our store space.

We attribute this rapid and substantial growth to two factors: First, our policy of offering the greatest possible value for the price; Second, concentration of our advertising for maximum effectiveness — with 80% of our entire advertising budget being concentrated in the Post-Crescent.

In the month of October, we increased our advertising in the Post-Crescent by 75% over October of last year...and enjoyed a 42% increase in our volume of business for the month. For the first ten months of this year we increased our advertising in the Post-Crescent by 60% over the like period of last year...and have enjoyed a comparable increase in our business.

Your representative, Wilmer Krueger, has given us invaluable assistance in our advertising. We appreciate his great help. We are looking forward to even greater progress in the future...in our larger store and enlarged advertising program in the Post-Crescent.

Sincerely yours,

V. Scanlan

Athletics Must be Second To Humanities, Educator Says

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Athletics must be subordinate to the humanities and science in a properly-run college, in the view of a Wisconsin-trained educator who recently became president of a prominent west coast college.

The view is offered by Richard P. Bailey, new president of Yakima Junior college in the state of Washington, in an article published in the journal of the Wisconsin Education association.

Bailey described the interview questions submitted to him when he applied for the Yakima job, including a challenge to define the relationship of science, the humanities and an athletic program. He indicated that his replies were responsible for his selection. He left the job of administrative assistant in the Wisconsin state college system to go to Washington.

Wrote the youthful college head who once taught at the state college at Oshkosh:

"The proper relationship must put athletics last. It is not basic to education and has value only as it contributes to the health of participants.

"Both science and the humanities are basic to education. However, if a choice must be made, first place would go to the humanities."

Give Thanks for Prosperity in '59

BY SYLVIA PORTER

In this Thanksgiving week, 1959, what have we to be thankful for in the economic sphere — the sphere which covers our jobs, paychecks, financial peace of mind today and tomorrow?

We still are strongly and solidly into a cycle of business expansion and prosperity, and for the vast majority of working Americans these months will be the best ever in jobs and incomes.

Ours is still a young prosperity as expansion phases go in this country. When the steel strike hit and began distorting the entire economic pattern, there were no signs of the tiredness in business activity which always warn a downturn is directly ahead.

Assuming there is no resumption of the steel strike after the Jan. 26 deadline, we will be entering 1960 on a rising wave of activity in just about every area.

Employment next year is set to climb to an all-time record. Paychecks are heading for new peaks. Our total production of goods and services finally will smash through the historic mark of $500 billion (a half-trillion dollars) a year and go way above it.

Moreover, the 1960 advance will start with plenty of power behind it. For propping the expansion will be rising spending by businessmen to restock the shelves emptied during the weeks of prolonged steel strike; rising spending by consumers to buy both big and little-ticket goods and services; rising spending by corporations to build new plants and modernize facilities so they can fill consumer demands most efficiently and inexpensively; rising exports of U.S. goods to other countries; rising spending by state and local governments.

Modest Increase Assuming the steel settlement does not set off a new inflation push in our country, the increase in the general price level in 1960 shouldn't be much different from the increase in the overall consumer price level in 1959. And this year's increase has been modest.

Does it sound too good to be true? To a fairly large group, it does. Some highly respected economists fear that the steel strike went so long, hurt so badly that the zoom is out of this upward push. Some think we face a year of dreadful disturbance in labor negotiations and that strikes will make 1960 a period of turbulence rather than expansion. Others worry that the downturn in housing means a vital economic stimulant will become a drag in 1960, and many businessmen who hail a balanced budget fret about the disappearance of the spur of higher federal government spending.

Nevertheless, the evidence of history is that strikes do not kill a business advance; they just interrupt and stretch it out. And my assumption is that powerful industry and labor in America, will not be so blind to what is at stake that they will lock in warfare so devastating it will cripple our economy.

Reasonable Prediction On the basis of this evidence and assumption, the reasonable prediction is for a year of prosperity in 1960.

Why restrict it to 1960? Because although only a person arrogant to the point of stupidity would dare forecast what will be on Thanksgiving eve a year from now, the history of the duration of business cycles suggests that by next November we'll be building up to another business recession.

By then this advance will have lasted more than 24 years, will be getting old for an expansion phase. By then businesses will have filled their warehouses and shelves with goods, much new plant capacity will be operating, wage-cost increases will be biting into profits. It's no secret that many top economists definitely time the next recession for 1961.

Over Ambitious

Milwaukee — (AP) — Frank Dionesopolus was appointed Milwaukee county coroner and he immediately announced his main objective: to have the office abolished.

Dionesopolus said the $50 a month coroner's post was unnecessary because the county medical examiner's office performs the duties formerly carried out by the coroner.

Thus, as we give thanks for today's prosperity, let's show our gratitude by vowing to make it last. Only if we start planning far ahead to meet the challenge of the next recession will we be ready to meet the challenge when it comes.
